DUTCH BLAST 70 NAZI PLANES

AMSTERDAM, May 10 (AP)—The Netherlands officially announced today that her defense forces had shot down at least 70 German planes, blown up a German armored train at Venlo and were offering strong resistance along rivers just inside the eastern part of the country from Germany.

The armored train, described as one of four "successfully attacked," was reported blown up while attempting to cross the Maas river bridge at Venlo, on the border between the Province of Limburg and Germany. The announcement said Netherlands troops offered strong resistance to the invaders on the Ijssel and Maas rivers, a short distance within The Netherlands, and maintained positions at Delfzijl.

HITLER LEADS MILLION MEN INTO HOLLAND AND BELGIUM

Adolf Hitler, proclaiming the beginning of a fight which "decides the fate of the German nation for the next 1000 years," hurled a million armed men on foot and by air into The Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg today. Berlin reports said the Fuehrer himself was at the front.

Vast Nazi air squadrons streaked across the Lowlands, dropping troops from the skies in parachutes and blasting airports with bombs. Mosquito fleet torpedo boats flashed into Dutch harbors, landing machine gunners.

The initial dash put German troops and bombing planes within 100 miles of London.

The step was taken according to official German pronouncement, "to forestall an Allied attack on the German Ruhr valley with the connivance of Belgium and Holland.

Collapse of Holland within 48 hours was confidently predicted by the German invaders. The city of Antwerp in Belgium was bombed by 37 planes and a military hospital reported destroyed.

Belgium read leaflets dropped from planes explaining that the Germans were "attacking England, not Belgium."

Britain Expects Nazi Invasion

Britain's Ministry for Home Security warned all England to be prepared for a Nazi invasion.

The Netherlands and Belgium mustered their full strength against the invaders and called for help from the Allies, who said it was being sent "with the greatest speed."

Tiny Luxembourg's government was reported to have fled.

In The Netherlands, where flood waters were sent racing into strategic regions, the Germans used flat-bottomed boats and seaplanes to span inundated areas. Warplanes bombed airports and other objectives or landed troops by parachute. Fleet units struck along the coast.

Rotterdam was taken completely by surprise as hundreds of German planes roared over the city at 4 a. m. Troops landed from seaplanes, fought their way into the center of the city before the eyes of civilians still clad in night clothes.

The Berlin radio announced the occupation of The Hague, the seat of The Netherlands government. Queen Wilhelmina broadcast a "flaming protest against the unexampled violation of good faith."

Belgium ordered general mobilization and King Leopold took active command of the 600,00 troops as his father

Allied Armies in Belgium; Gigantic Nazi Battle Near

PARIS, May 10 (AP)—A British-French army was authoritatively reported moving rapidly across the Belgian border today to meet German legions which had entered from the east and a Paris military spokesman said the "most gigantic battle of all time" may be near at hand.

A dispatch from Brussels by Havas, French news agency, said a French-British army had crossed the Belgian frontier while the Belgian army had halted the German invaders, at least temporarily.

The spokesman said that the Germans must have one of two military purposes in mind.

Pointing out it was difficult at the moment to determine the exact Nazi objectives, the spokesman said they may be trying:

1—An operation to gain control of a long strip of coastline facing England, or

2—A vast strategical movement of invasion comparable to and infinitely larger than that carried out by the German troops across Belgium in 1914.

France, beating off Nazi air attacks within her own borders quickly assured Belgium and the Netherlands of all possible assistance.

The French promise of aid was

ROTTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS, May 10 (AP)—A German army of the air spanned the strong land and water-line defenses of The Netherlands today and, landing by parachute and in huge seaplane transports at the western side of the nation, fought its way into part of this seaport city.

The troops occupied Rotterdam's Vaalhaven airport, after first leveling it with a tremendous aerial bombardment; alighted on the Nieuwe Maas river in the center of Rotterdam, occupied a big bridge across the river and captured the Maas railway station in the city.

Heavy fighting was going on in Rotterdam itself, with the Dutch troops clinging tenaciously to the right bank of the Nieuwe Maas, which bisects the city.

On the other side of Holland, across the main water line now fed by wide open dykes, Netherlands' first defenders were resisting a German land army which entered the country along the Rhine and swarmed ahead some 15 miles to the vicinity of the Ijssel river, near Arnhem.

Doughty Queen Wilhelmina uttered a "flaming protest" against Germany, urged her nation to its duty and sought strong assistanc from the British-French Allies.

REHEARSAL FOR HOLLAND—Same tactics used by Germany against Norway today was proving effective in Belgium and Holland . . . and here Nazi flying soldiers are shown just after their landing at a Norwegian airport. Early reports told of parachute troops dropping in Holland.

ALLIED PLANES POUR IN

The said they would help, and quickly. British and French planes were over the country long before none seeking the enemy. Allied troops and naval forces were confidently expected.

It all was part of a vast, combined German offensive against Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg, combined with aerial assaults against both France and Britain.

The amazing methods of aerial warfare enabled the Germans to circumvent the entire Netherlands water and land defense system and move into this key city, scarcely more than 100 miles from the British coast and the home of 600,000 people.

Rotterdam was taken completely by surprise at 4 a. m. by the roar of hundreds of German planes over the city.

Virtually the entire population streamed into the streets in nightclothes.

COME IN RUBBER BOATS

The Waalhaven airport, south of the city, was converted into a series of craters by air bombs and the hangars were knocked to the ground.

Although anti-aircraft batteries kept up a constant barrage, the Germans succeeded in landing their men by parachute and overwhelming the Dutch defenders.

Great German seaplanes alighted on the Nieuwe Maas, putting troops ashore in rubber boats, but the Germans were unable, for the time being, to penetrate the right bank of the river. German troops trying to advance along the left bank also were kept from crossing the stream by stubborn Dutch resistance.

The Dutch were entirely in control of the right bank early this afternoon. All drawbridges had been opened to prevent crossings.

Barricades were thrown up in the streets. The Germans were using abandoned street cars for shelters.

The Germans who landed in the river and both light and heavy machine guns.

POLICE SHOT DOWN

They easily disarmed the few Dutch soldiers guarding the big bridge and took the railway station on the left bank with little trouble.

A police inspector who was near the station drew a revolver and was shot down immediately. Other police were killed or wounded in trying to resist.

In Amsterdam, only an hour and a half motor trip northeast of Rotterdam the stock exchange was closed and Dutch Nazi and Communist newspapers were shut down by government order.

The nation, spurred by a proclamation of Queen Wilhelmina's "flaming protest" against Germany, hurled its entire strength against the encroaching German spearheads and battled fiercely with the "suicide squad" of Ger-

BELGIUM ASKS HELP OF U. S. IN AIR BOMBINGS BY NAZIS

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP)—The Belgian government asked the State Department today to inform the German government that Brussels, which had been bombed by Nazi planes, is an open city and that no troops are stationed there.

The department immediately communicated this message to the German foreign office through the United States embassy in Berlin.

The Belgian request was conveyed through Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy in London, who had received it by phone from United States Ambassador John Cudahy in Brussels.

Cudahy informed Kennedy that during the bombing a house near the United States embassy was hit.

F. D. CALLS CONFERENCE

After consultation with financial officials who had been routed out of bed, the President signed an executive order extending the freezing decree on Danish and Norwegian assets to the Netherlands, elgian and Luxembourg.

The emergency order, rushed through before the country's financial markets opened, was the first precautionary step taken to cope with the new war situation.

Officials of the State, War, Navy and Justice Departments were summoned to consult with President Roosevelt about extending the neutrality act provisions to the low countries.

Immediately after the President signed the executive order, Secretary Morgenthau issued a series of regulations implementing the proclamation. These were transmitted to all Federal Reserve banks.

Those who were called to the White House meeting were Secretary Hull, Undersecretary Welles, Attorney General Jackson, General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

TOKYO, May 10 (INS)—A rumor spread in Tokyo tonight that the Japanese fleet is en route to the Dutch East Indies. Officials refused to comment.

The foreign office would not discuss the possible effects of the German invasion of Holland on the Dutch East Indies.

Stocks Tumble, Commodities On News of Nazi Blitzkrieg

NEW YORK, May 10—Tumbling stock prices vied with soaring commodities for the financial limelight today as Nazi war hordes poured into Holland and Belgium.

Early advances of $1 to $3 a share in leading steel, sugar and aviation shares were replaced by losses of as much and more as traders' visions of fresh war prosperity dimmed on fears of Allied reverses.

In Chicago, wheat staged a vertical rise of 3⅞ to 5 cents a bushel to peaks just shy of the best levels attained since 1937.

International sugar quotations rose 6½ to 9½ cents as increased difficulties in world trade threatened to reduce supplies.

STEEL TRADING HEAVY

Observers viewing the difficulties encountered by the market after its early spurt, recalled that in World War days stock prices fluctuated with the fortunes of the Allies.

Then, they recalled, the advance in war babies was a jerky affair.

Today's action was consistent with their observations and also fitted in with brokerage explanations that many clients feared the spread of total war.

While steel shares ran down from the best opening prices, all did not drop behind minus signs.

Bethlehem Steel, most famed of 1914 far babies, held to a small gain in stubborn fashion throughout the storm of excited selling that sent the ticker tape as much as 5 minutes late at one time.

COTTON BACKWARD

Cotton futures were backward. At their worst, cotton future were off 10 to 17 points.

Foreign exchange trading was demoralized as the pound sterling flopped 29¾ cents to open at $3.05.

There was no market for the Dutch guilder, the Belgian belga and the Swiss franc.

Belgium bonds were offered at the market by fearful sellers with no near bids reported. Italian bonds joined the crackup posting losses of $30 per $1000 bond.

In London and Paris stock markets showed Royal Dutch, the big Netherlands oil company, was pounded sharply lower.

Some stocks in London and Paris were not quoted by brokers because of the tremendous pressure of selling orders.

French government bonds, Rentes, bore the brunt of liquidation in the Paris Bourse and closing prices showed the sharpest losses for the war period.

CHILDREN KILLED IN AIR RAID ON BRUSSELS

BRUSSELS, May 10 (AP)—Belgium mustered her fullest military strength today against a German Blitzkrieg which struck also in the neighboring Netherlands and Luxembourg as Nazi bombers and aerial transport rsanged behind the battle lines and land troops hammered at the frontiers.

Two children were killed and 50 persons wounded in an air raid on Brussels. The Brussels airport also was bombed.

Bombs fell on numerous railway stations in the heart of the country.

King Leopold III, taking active command of the armed forces as his father, King Albert, did in 1914, ordered complete mobilization against the invalers and appealed to the Allies for help.

Both Britain and France promised quick aid against the German blow, which came without warning in an attempt to clear a route into France and secure bases for attacking England.

The Belgian foreign minister, Paul Henri Spaak, imploring assistance "without delay," told the French and British ambassadors that the Belgian government "has decided to resist with all its powers."

The King prepared to address a special session of the Chamber of Deputies.

A hospital for the insane at Mortsel was reported to have been set afire by bombs.

(This report was denned immediately in Germany where it was said Adolf Hitler had given explicit orders that hospitals marked with the Red Cross were not to be bombed.)

Firing of anti-alcraft guns was halted shortly before 7 a. m. Trolleys ran uninterrupted and military dispatch riders dashed through the streets on motorcycles.

It was reported here that the Germans, invading Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, had dropped leaflets on The Netherland's capital, The Hague, saying Germany was attacking Great Britain and that the population must abstain from attacking the Germans.

WARNED OF PARACHUTISTS

The radio said that no diplomatic approach had been made by Germany to Belgium before the invasion.

The radio called on the Belgian people to watch for parachutes descending singly and in numbers and to be on guard for saboteurs. The populace was asked to aid the police in capturing parachutists.

Amid high excitement in the Belgian capital, official offices were crammed with callers and communications were temporarily disrupted by a storm of official messages.

The invasion of the three little countries was signalled by waves of German bombers and parachute troops dropped in the dark hours before dawn.

The Brussels radio announced that German troops crossed the frontier of Belgium at four points.

Parachute troops, said the Brussels radio, dropped from German planes at Nivelles, less than 20 miles directly south of Brussels and at St. Trond, 40 miles due east.

By a broadcast proclamation the government told the Belgian people it had appealed to Britain and France for aid and that King Leopold had instructed his diplomatic representative at Berlin to lodge a protest against the invasion.

Violent explosions of anti-aircraft fire were heard over the city where the cabinet had been sitting in extraordinary session during the night.

A Belgian government communique urged the population to remain cool, ordered schools closed and the nation blacked out at night.

Everyone was advised to take cover from air bombs.

The cabinet remained in permanent session after Premier Hubert Pierlot conferred with the King.

Antwerp was bombed. The railway station at Jemelle, in the southeast corner of Belgium not far from the Luxembourg frontier, was reported in flames.

More than 100 German planes roared over Brussels, the capital. The Brussels airport was subjected to heavy bombing.

CALL OUT ARMY

German troops were landed by parachute at Hasselt, in eastern Belgium, while reports of other troop landings could not be confirmed immediately.

The situation still was unclear at 6 a. m. and it was not known whether Belgium was at war.

The sound of anti-aircraft fire made it appear war had begun.

Official notices were plastered over walls telling military men to join their units at once.

Invasion Delays British Radio

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—The British Broadcasting Co. was late with its 8 a. m. news broadcast.

When it finally started the announcer said:

"I must apologize for keeping you waiting — Germany has just invaded Holland and Belgium . . ."

HITLER'S MESSAGE TO ARMY

BERLIN, May 10 (INS)—Hitler delivered a message to his troops on the western front today, informing them that "the hour has come for the most decisive struggle of the German people—a fight to decide the fate of the German nation for the next 1000 years."

Hitler's war proclamation read:

"For 300 years the rulers of England and France have tried to frustrate the consolidation of Europe and above all to keep Germany weak and powerless.

"To this end France alone has declared war on Germany on 31 occasions within two centuries.

"But for decades past it has also been the aim of British world rulers to prevent German unity under all circumstances and deny the Reich such vital goods as are necessary for the preservation of 80,000,000 people.

"England and France carried out this policy without regard to the regime prevailing in Germany. They always wanted to hit the German people and their responsible statesmen today admit this. Their aim is that Germany shall be crushed and dissolved into small states.

"That is why all my peace moves have been rejected and why war was declared last September.

"The German people felt no hatred or enmity for the British and French nations. However, today they face the decision whether they want to continue to live or to perish.

"Within a few weeks our gallant troops defeated the Polish enemy sent forward by Britain and France, and thereby removed the menace from the east. Thereupon England and France decided to attack Germany from the north. But on April 9 the German defense forces nipped this attempt in the bud.

"Now something has occurred which faced us as a menace for many months. England and France were attempting to push through to the Ruhr by way of Holland and Belgium while staging a gigantic diversion maneuver in southeastern Europe.

"Soldiers of the western front! The zero hour has now come for you. The struggle is beginning today to decide the fate of the German nation for the next thousand years. Now do your duty. The German nation's blessings are with you."

SWISS TOWNS ARE BOMBED, STATE OF WAR DECLARED

BERNE, Switzerland, May 10 (AP)—The Swiss government today ordered general mobilization beginning tomorrow at dawn and announced that a precautionary "state of war" begins at midnight tonight.

The official communique, which folowed a series of bombings and sharp air battles over Swiss soil, said the mobilization was ordered "in view of the profound changes which have taken place on the western front."

The Swiss army, it was said, was ready "for any eventuality . . . to face any menace from whatever side it may come, in conformity with the absolute desire of the federation for neutrality."

ARMY OF 600,000

All visas for entry into Switzerland were cancelled.

The guard over the border traffic was heavily reinforced.

The Swiss general staff announced that 17 bombs fell on Swiss soil in the Courrendlin region.

Large forces of crack Swiss frontier troops were rushed from the rear guard to the German and French frontiers.

It was estimated that 300,000 men are already in the Winkelried line facing Germany and in small fortifications along the French frontier.

A total of between 600,000 and 700,000 men may soon be under arms.

Sharp air battles took place near Basel, Switzerland, at 12:30 a. m. today.

FIRE ON NAZI PLANES

A German bomber crossed the frontier at Grenzach and flew over Basel en route to France. The German craft was immediately the target of anti-aircraft fire from guns at Altkirch and Belfort.

The plane returned to Germany at 4:15 a. m.

Soon afterwards, 20 bombers crossed the frontier at Loerrach, some of them passing over Swiss territory on their way to France.

A heavy fog prevented Swiss air defenses from bringing any of the planes down. The Nazi aircraft were believed to be those which bombed Lyons this morning.

A bomb dropped in Delemont, a Swiss town near the French frontier, destroyed the rail track, but train traffic can be detoured and continued.

Following heavy Swiss and French anti-craft fire, the planes returned to Germany.

NAZIS LIST LOWLANDS' AID TO ALLIES

BERLIN, May 10 (AP)—Adolf Hitler has gone to the western front to assume personal direction of military operations, the German high command announced today.

(Berlin reports 1,000,000 troops are engaged in the Lowlands campaign.)

The high command's daily communique was datelined this time from "Fuehrer's Headquarters" and said:

"In view of the immediately impending extension of the war area by evening onto Belgian and Dutch territory and the threat to the Ruhr territory connected therewith, the German western army at daybreak, May 10, started over the German western borders along the broadest front for attack.

"Simultaneously, the air force attacked an enemy airport with great success and strong units have taken a hand in land fighting in support of ground troops.

HITLER "PROTECTS" THEM

"To conduct general operations of the defense force, the Fuehrer and supreme commander has gone to the front."

Hitler, as he sent his troops into Belgium and Holland, demanded that those countries accept his "protection" of their neutrality without resistance.

Germany's Ruhr valley was threatened by an Allied attack he informed the governments of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg through his foreign minister, and the Dutch and Belgian governments were conniving at it.

Wherefore, Germany was declared compelled to act to anticipate the blow.

The guilt for any bloodshed will fall on Britain and France, as well as the Belgian and Dutch governments, it was said.

RIBBENTROP'S THREAT

Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop summoned foreign press representatives to the foreign office and with a voice husky and deep in bitterness, addressed the correspondents.

"England and France at last dropped the mask," he declared. "The attack on the Ruhr valley was definitely planned. It was to come via Belgium and Holland.

"This attack was planned with the knowledge and connivance of the Belgian and Dutch governments. Our Fuehrer was not willing to have this important region submitted to new aggression.

"The Fuehrer, therefore, has decided to take the neutrality of Belgium and Holland under his protection.

"Germany now will talk only the language which the English and French governments seem to understand, and settle scores once and for all with them."

He read the text of the memorandum to the three governments which began with a reiteration of the German standpoint that "the main object of the British and French is to extend the war to other countries."

BALKAN DRIVE A BLIND

The news distributed by Ritain and France of impending action in the alkans was a blind, the memorandum said, to mislead Germany.

"In reality, the ostensible shifting of the AngloFrench war policy to the Mediterranean was only a large scale maneuver to divert attention de deceive Germany as to the actual scene of the next Anglo-French attack."

The real point of attack, said the memorandum, as the west, with the Ruhr district, with its vital coal and iron and its war industries the objective.

"Germany recognized and respected the integrity of Belgium and Holland on the natural supposition the two countries would preserve the strictest neutrality. Belgium and Holland have not complied with this condition."

THE STATEMENT CONTINUES

Although maintaining the "appearance" of neutrality, the memorandum then charged, Belgium and Holland in reality "have supported them (the Allies) in their intentions."

Eight facts, which were declared incontrovertible, were presented as proof of these assertions.

"PLOTTED GERMAN REVOLT"

These may be summarized by the following excerpts:

1. "Since the outbreak of the war, the Belgian and Dutch press has shown an anti-German attitude in excess even of that taken by the British and French newspapers.

2—"Holland, in conjunction with certain Belgian circles, has lent support to atempt sof the British secret service to bring about revolution in Germany.

3—"Measures taken in the military sphere . . . provide incontrovertible proof of the true intentions of the policy fo Belgium and Holland.

4—"Belgium, to given an example, exclusively fortified her eastern frontier against Germany,

Kaiser Chopping Wood, Waiting—

AMSTERDAM, May 10 (INS)

The Dutch soil on which Nazi planes today rained bombs of death and destruction is still the refuge of the former Kaiser Wilhelm, who led Germany to defeat in the last war.

At last reports the former Kaiser was still at his home of exile in Doorn, studying developments.

For exercise, the white-bearded former German war lord was quietly chopping wood.

ITALY SEES NEW NAZI VICTORY

ROME, May 10 (AP)—Italy accepted the German invasion of Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg today as another beating in speed for the Allies without involving Italy in the war.

Newspapers announced the invasion with streamer headlines, with "Allies beaten once again in swiftness" their only comment.

Rome was criss-crossed by a network of feverish diplomatic activity as ambassadors exchanged views, some of them calling at the foreign ministry.

The Belgian Ambassador, Count Andre de Kerchove, saw Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano, presumably to inform him of Belgium's reaction to the invasion.

It was assumed the British and French ambassadors also would seek interviews for a similar purpose.

The almost unanimous impression in diplomatic circles was that Mussolini would keep Italy out of the war until the meaning of the new stroke and its repercussions became apparent.

Ciano Calls U. S. Envoy in Crisis

ROME, May 10 (INS)—United States Ambassador William Phillips called at the Chigi palace in Rome today and conferred with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano in response to an urgent summons.

It was assumed that Ciano had an important message for Phillips and the American government, but there was no hint of its nature immediately.

Confidence that Italy is remaining out of the war for the present was indicated by the United States embassy in refraining from advising Americans in Rome to leave the country.

The absence of any such recommendation was considered significant.

POPE PIUS WEEPS AT NEW NEWS

VATAN CITY, May 10 (INS)—Tremendously shocked and weeping openly, Pope Pius retired to his private chapel today to offer his own fervent prayers after he received the news of the Nazi invasion of Holland and Belgium.

The Pontiff was at breakfast when he received the news of what the entire Vatican considered "an unjustifiable aggression."

The Vatican newspaper Osservatore was bluntly outspoken in its condemnation of the invasion, declaring:

"The German initiative is inexcusable. . . . The most intimate sense of humanity, of Christian charity and the community of peoples cannot but be wounded, rebel and protest."

Chamberlain Resumes Strolls

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—Despite the German invasion of Belgium and the Netherlands, Prime Minister Chamberlain today resumed his regular morning strolls through St. James' Park.

Chamberlain had omitted the customary walk yesterday in the midst of a cabinet crisis.

Political observers said the new Nazi blitzkrieg had made it almost certain Chamberlain would retain office, at least for the present.

HOW HITLER'S BLITZKRIEG HIT THREE NEUTRALS

BERLIN, May 10 (AP)—With lightning strokes made famous in half a dozen campaigns and excursions, Germany swept into Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg before daylight today with a view to planting iron-shod Nazi Legions in front of a British-French drive to occupy the Ruhr valley.

With thousands of rubber boats to carry her troops across the flooded Dutch lowlands and with every other conceivable preparation painstakingly made, Germany struck without warning.

Reports broadcast from Holland indicated swarms of armed-to-the teeth parachutists were dropped on Dutch nerve centers. The Netherlands' airports and naval bases were prime objects of attack.

The whole direction of the attack was strikingly similar to the dash into Belgium which carried the Germans to the outskirts of Paris in 1914 and inaugurated four desperate years of warfare on the flat plains of Flanders and France.

TO CRUSH OPPOSITION

Diplomatic representatives of the three tiny neutrals standing in the way of Germany's winged and motorized legions were summoned to the foreign office at daybreak to be told what was afoot.

By that time German troops long had been on the move, and German bomber pilots started on their day's work over the lowlands.

The German high command justified extending its protective wing over the three countries on the grounds that Belgium and Holland had been conniving to permit a French-British attack on the Ruhr, Germany's nerve center of iron, coal and Krupp munitions.

As for little Luxembourg, she was merely taken into the scope of war activities because she stood in a corner next to the Reich's "Pittsburgh."

During the early morning houre German military sources withheld every slightest detail of their operations.

BLITZKRIEG'S FURY

However, Dutch and Belgian governments were told through their representatives here that should the German troops encounter opposition "it will be crushed with every means."

The speed of Germany's blitzkrieg machine had been demonstrated in Poland where an armored unit had reached the gates of Warsaw in less than a week while Marshal Goering's air force had bombed and made useless every Polish airport within a matter of hours.

Authoritative Germans said that Holland and Belgium confronted with the same lightning would not last 24 hours.

Huge Junkers airplanes capable of carrying 15 men with full equipment and even faster and more modern type planes were used to sprinkle parachuting troopers at far-interior vital points.

It was widely reported that Germany long had concentrated her very best troops on the weakest portion of her western defenses.

WATER BARRIER DOUBTED

That was the Holland-Belgium frontier, where the Westwall had not been extended until recently and where the fortifications were understood to be not so heavily built as those facing France's famed Maginot line.

How effective were plans of the Dutch for opening their dykes and spreading the treacherous film of water in the path of Germany's motorized detachments could only be conjectured.

Detailed reports from the front later were expected to show how Germany's fast-rolling tanks and belted-tread pursuit cars would fare.

German battle tactics practiced in Poland called for fast, deep mechanized thrusts followed by pinching tactics.

These tactics were made possible only by Germany's enormous airforce which controlled observation and kept the ground segments informed of every movement of the enemy.

From the beginning of the action Germany had a military advantage in several ways. Her planes had bases close to the scene of operations.

Any defending planes which the Allies might rush against them would have to be based in England or France or be dispatched to Belgian-Netherlands fields opened under fire.

Germany's ground divisions also were ready and concentrated at their jumping-off places in impressive dozens, while available aid from France and England had to pick up from positions in France or England and move into the line of the German attack.

The main consideration was how much time the Belgians, noted for their stubborn defense in 1914 and the solid Dutch would be able to give their Allies to reach the front.

New Nazi Drive Adds to Foreign Riches Frozen in U.S.

NEW YORK, May 9 (AP) Invasion of the low countries froze in the New York money markets the largest foreign-owned liquid assets yet affected by the Nazi conquests.

The Netherlands were estimated in informed quarters to have on deposit here about $200,000,000 in balances, together with a substantial portion of the $700,000,000 of the Banak of the Netherlands gold reserves. About $850,000,000 in American securities are owned in the Netherlands.

Belgium, it was said, has about $165,000,000 in short-term balances here and approximately $121,000,000 in holdings of American stocks and bonds. Some of her gold reserve, totaling around $800,000,000, was reported to have been sent here.

Switzerland, it was estimated, has nearly $400,000,000 in liquid balances in this country and holds about $375,000,000 in American stocks and bonds.

A large part of Switzerland's monetary gold store, totalling more than $500,000,000, also has been sent to the United States in the past year.

The seizure of Denmark tied up about $67,000,000 in Danish short-term balances here. Norway's balances, also frozen, amounted to about $28,000,000, in addition to gold reserves.

All Americans Safe in Hague

WASHINGTON, May 10 (AP) Americans in the Hague, Amsterdam and Rotterdam were reported safe today by George A Gordon, United States minister to The Netherlands.

Gordon, barely able to conduct the telephone conversation on account of the noise of anti-aircraft and machine gun fire, told Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles that all Americans in the Hague consular district had been "brought in" and were safe, except for one lonely that lived in outlying district. A military attache had gone out to escort it to the city.

ALLIED ARMIES RUSH AID TO LOWLANDS

LONDON, May 10—After eight months of waiting, the British and French armies on the Western Front sprang into action today to defend Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg against a lightning German invasion by land, sea and air.

Britain expected an invasion of her own soil momentarily.

While weak and poorly-defended Luxembourg apparently fell into German hands a short while after Hitler ordered his army and air force, both Belgium and Holland offered stout resistance.

Even before the Allied armies started rolling into the invader countries in response to urgent Belgo-Dutch appeals for Anglo-French aid the home troops of Holland and Belgium had thrown a wrench into the cogs of the Nazi military machine by blowing up bridges and roads.

Up to a late hour this afternoon there was no definite word of any contact between Allied armies and the invading German divisions.

AIRPORTS BOMBED

Actually, the German campaign apparently was a spectacular and at least partially successful undertaking. Airports throughout Holland, Belgium and France were bombed mercilessly, and there was one unconfirmed report that four German incendiary bombs were dropped on the English town of Chilham, near Canterbury.

In retaliation, British, French, Dutch and Belgian airplanes were reported in action over the Lowlands, offering the Germans the first real resistance they have encountered since the Nazi invasion of Poland started the war last September.

Britain made immediate and large-scale preparations to repel an expected air attack on England. All Royal Air Force leaves were cancelled, the various air raid precautions services put on an alert basis and the public warned to carry gas masks.

As vast Nazi air squadrons streaked across the Lowlands, dropping parachute troops from the skies, Belgium and Holland declared themselves allies of Great Britain and France. Belgium particularly emphasized her determination to resist the attack, but the situation in poorly-armed Holland was more obscure.

WAR CABINET MEETS

The British war cabinet was called into emergency session the moment the storm broke. Chamberlain is expected to see King George within a few hours.

In response to the Belgian-Dutch appeals for help Foreign Minister Lord Halifax pledged that "we shall stand firmly by the side of the Belgian people and the people of The Netherlands in the struggle so wantonly forced upon them."

The Belgian and Netherlands envoys conferred with Halifax and later the Belgian ambassador, Baron Cartier de Marchienne, proclaimed "they shall not pass this time.

"We have been invaded and when we fight we fight like blazes," the ambassador said. "You can depend on that."

The German blow came theoretically at the hour when Britain was most divided by a domestic political crisis. But the result was to weld the nation to close unity, at least for the moment.

Opposition leaders, who have clamored for Prime Minister Chamberlain's resignation since the British military failure in Norway, conferred with Chamberlain giving the signal for a political truce.

Some sources said it was likely Parliament, which adjourned yesterday for the Whitsuntide recess,

ALL HAIL THE ALL MALT ALE!
CROFT
CREAM ALE
New England's LIGHT, Sparkling Drink

IF YOU'VE ever enjoyed a glass of ale try Croft Cream Ale. Is there a difference? You bet your bottom dime there is!

For Croft Cream Ale is all malt. No other cereals are used in even the smallest quantities. It's brewed like the fine imported beers and Canadian ales.

That's the reason Croft Cream Ale has such a superbly delightful flavor — such a refreshingly light body. That's why Croft Cream Ale is so popular in New England.

It takes more than words to tell of that sparkling, zestful clarity and tempting tang. But it takes only a taste to convince you — Croft Cream Ale . . . the all malt ale . . . is your idea of real ale perfection. Try some — in bottles, cans and steinies at package stores — and on draught at your favorite bars and restaurants!

For a darker, sturdy ale from a different formula—try CROFT RED LABEL

Westfield to Offer Reward for Slayer

WESTFIELD, May 10 Faced with numerous theories based on both fact and near fantasy, officials today considered posting of a reward in efforts to ferret out the killer of Prof. Lewis B. Allyn, famed pure food expert, Westfield's woman mayor Mrs Alice D. Burke, said she would take up with the police commission the matter of a substantial reward for information leading to solution of the baffling crime.

Unwilling to overlook the possibility that local talent inspired the killing, officials hoped a reward would serve as an incentive to loosen tongues which otherwise might remain silent concerning incidents significant in the light of the killing.

As they pressed their search for tangible clues, investigators pondered theories ranging from one of gang revenge slaying to that of assassination for a military prize which Prof. Allyn may have held in a new concentrated food process for use during war.

CONDEMNED LIQUOR

Only recently police learned, the noted research chemist had analyzed and condemned a large quantity of valuable liquor seized by the internal revenue department. In this lies the theory of gangland revenge.

Only recently, too, Prof. Allyn is reported to have discovered a formula for concentrated food that was more powerful than the one he devised for the Russian army in 1915.

While addressing a group in Westfield High School two weeks ago, according to police, he hinted that warring countries would stop at nothing to gain his secret.

"I think I have made a great discovery, or I am on the brink of one," he was quoted as saying.

DOING SECRET WORK

Walter D. Allyn, Huntington town clerk, brother of the victim who was slain in his living room Tuesday night, told reporters

"He was doing a type of work which necessitated the greatest secrecy. I don't believe even his wife had an inkling of what he was working on."

But officials, while withholding full details of their probe during the last 60 hours, indicated they could not reconcile murder by gangland or organization with a .22-caliber gun, a weapon scorned by gangsters.

Some officials were convinced that the murder was committed by an enraged person, for five bullets were fired into the chemist's body.

Whether the killer forced admittance into the Allyn home or was known by the professor and admitted as a friend, could not be definitely determined by police

MAY HAVE BEEN FRIEND

Mrs. Allyn, who found her husband's body, indicated to police that the caller was an old friend, but that a scuffle developed before the actual shooting. At the time, she was in her bedroom, while her husband had stayed up to read.

Dist. Atty. Thomas F. Moriarty disclosed that a Westfield woman had provided a description of a black sedan which was parked suspiciously near the Allyn home on the night of the murder.

Behind the wheel of the unlighted car, she said, was a man wearing dark glasses with his coat collar pulled up.

From this information police were working on the theory this man was the accomplice of the actual killer who possibly stood on the lawn or veranda and waited for the opportunity to slip inside the house.

Police also learned that at least two attempts were made in recent weeks to burglarize Allyn's home, while he and his wife were away.

No valuables were disturbed, but police found evidence that the intruders had made unsuccessful efforts to locate a reported secret panel in the house, in which Allyn is said to have kept certain important papers dealing with chemical formulate.

COACH PLANSKY TO WED

It's wedding bells soon for Tony Plansky, former star athlete at Georgetown and now head track coach at Williams, and pretty, blue-eyed Betty Lucas of Dorchester, it was revealed today.

The couple filed marriage intentions at Boston City Hall.

Tony, who weighed 220 and who stood six foot one when he played varsity football, baseball and track from 1925 to 1928 at Georgetown, later played football for the New York Giants, and baseball for the Bourne team of the Cape Cod League.

In 1929 he was picked for the All-Professional backfield with Red Grange, Benny Friedman and Ernie Nevers and he was chosen for the United States Olympic team when he won the national decathlon event.

He is well known in South Boston, where he lives on Bowen st., and where he went to school before attending Georgetown.

Miss Lucas, secretary in a downtown Boston insurance office, is a pretty Dorchester girl who went to St. Ann's and then graduated from Dorchester high.

Wedding plans have not been completed yet.

Vets' Newspaper Post to Install

Boston Newspapermen's Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold an installation of officers next Tuesday night at the Minerva restaurant, Huntington ave. Notables of state and city and persons prominent in religious and civic circles will be present.

The following officers, elected for the coming year, will be installed: Nathan Kanter, commander; Benjamin Gershon, senior vice commander; William Cornell, junior vice commander; Benjamin Levine, quartermaster; Max Shurin, chaplain; Michael Carchia, post advocate; Dr. Abraham Haskins, surgeon; Edward Segal, officer of day; Abe. Cohen, service officer; Jack Komar and Matty Francis, trustees; Sam Nathan, guard; Thomas Connolly and Samuel Cohen, color bearers, and Samuel Kolowsky, junior activity officer.

State Department Commander Wilfred Jacobs will be installing officer, assisted by Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms Thomas Reynolds.

Star Recalled For Tufts Play

Miss Eleonor Magee of Revere, voted most dramatic member of the Jackson College Class of 1938, will return to Tufts to take the leading feminine role in J. B. Priestly's "Johnson Over Jordan," being presented all next week as a part of the 30th anniversary of Pen, Paint and Pretzels, the Tufts dramatic society.

Paul Peterson of Medford, who graduated last year, will play the leading male role.

Using a cast of over 40 members, a ballet and ballroom, puppets, masks and almost continuous music, all the resources of the college have been enlisted to make it a genuine success.

Proceeds of the play will go to the new Theater Fund, to give Tufts a new play house and stage.

LEADERS PLAN TO DRAFT F. D.

By CECIL B. DICKSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 10—President Roosevelt will be "drafted" for a third term and will be compelled to accept the nomination, Rep. Kent Keller (D.) of Illinois, a leader in the third-term movement, declared today.

"Strategy adopted and being carried out by leaders of the third-term movement calls for the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt by acclamation at the Chicago convention," Keller said. "The demand will be so great that the President cannot refuse to run. I am confident he will accept."

Keller, a New Dealer and a recognized leader in the House liberal bloc, is slated to confer soon with President Roosevelt. He has been working with the White House "inner circle" and Democratic leaders throughout the country, and especially among labor leaders.

"President Roosevelt will have more than 900 of the 1100 delegates clamoring for his nomination when the convention opens," Keller said. "Before the first rollcall is ended, a motion will be made to nominate him by acclamation and the show will be over. The President cannot reject it.

"The President asked for the nomination twice, in 1932 and 1936, and this time we are asking him to accept it, and he will not refuse."

SUPPORT PILES UP

Keller made his prediction as the third-term movement continued to pile up support and an undercover scramble was begun for second place on the 1940 ticket.

Assurances that Michigan's 38 Democratic delegates will vote for a third term "if he wants it" were given the President today by Sen. Brown (D.) of Michigan, State Highway Commissioner Murray D. Van Wagoner and Deputy Commissioner Donald Kennedy.

Sen. Herring (D.) of Iowa predicted that, despite a drive to instruct the Iowa delegation for Secretary of Agriculture Wallace at a state convention Saturday, the 22 delegates would "go for Roosevelt."

TEXAS FOR GARNER

With friends of Vice-President Garner reported booming the Texan for a third term on a "Roosevelt-Garner" ticket, friends of Sen. Byrnes (D.) of South Carolina, and House Speaker Bankhead of Alabama became active.

Garner will have the Texas delegation of 46, plus three Wisconsin and possibly one California delegates for the presidential nomination.

He is contesting the President in the Oregon primaries on May 17, but his backers concede that he has little chance of the nomination unless the President absolutely refused to run. Thus the drive to make him the running mate again.

First Army Corps Prepares Maneuvers

The First Corps Area today was preparing for its annual maneuvers this summer off New England shores, which will include the laying of mines in the Boston area.

Army men also indicated that the six-inch guns of the Boston harbor defenses would be fired during the mock warfare, which will start in July.

$100,000 MAINE FIRE

SANFORD, Me., May 10—A general alarm fire which caused an estimated $100,000 worth of damage and drove 18 families into the street was still raging in the center of the city late today.

The blaze believed to have started in the boiler room of a recently remodeled two-story wooden building in Winter st, owned by Dr. S. A. Cobb and Dr. H. E. Loss.

Fan-redby buss winds the fire quickly spread to an adjoining business block destroying seven stores, including the U. S. Liquor store where thousands of dolars worth of alcoholic beverages were lost whenthe floor caved in.

Springdale fire apparatus was called to aid the Sanford department when it appeared the fire would assume dangerous proportions.

The 18 families driven into the street all lived in the 2-story wooden building in which the fire started.

Other stores swept by the fire included the Tetreau Beauty Parlor, the meat and provision store of Francis Gray, a lunchroom, operated by Arthur Blanchette, a fruit store, barber shop and a tailor shop.

DEPORT RUSSELL, DEMAND

Deportation of Bertrand Russell on grounds of moral turpitude was demanded by former Representative Thomas Dorgan of Dorchester.

Dorgan has enlisted the aid of Congressman John W. McCormack in Washington to spur immigration authorities to oust the British lecturer whose appointment to the College of the City of New York was recently balked after a spirited court battle.

Dorgan's move was made admittedly to prevent Russell from lecturing at Harvard next year.

"At the time Harvard made the contract with Russell they were either unaware of the character of Russell's writings or had failed to acquaint themselves with their obligations as a university as defined by our State Constitution and General Laws," Dorgan declared.

Joseph M. Murphy Gets Papal Cross

Joseph M. Murphy, director of the bureau of public relations at the Catholic University of America, Washington, D. C., has been awarded the Papal Cross "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice," for distinguished service in connection with the university's golden jubilee celebration.

Murphy, a former Abington boy, is one of three men to receive the honor. The award was presented in the name of the Pope. His mother, Mrs. Mary J. Murphy, lives in 6 Progress st., Abington.

Champion Stork Aide Predicts Sex of Baby

Dr. Bart F. Macchia, who has brought 1700 babies into the world, paused today to reveal another record.

In seven out of 10 cases he had correctly determined the sex of the baby before birth.

"I can usually tell by the heart beat," said the North End and Medford physician. "During the last month of development, the heart of the male baby beats more slowly."

In addition, there is something of a sixth sense that enables him to make the right prediction to inquiring parents, the 40-year-old physician said.

Dr. Macchia, a graduate of Tufts School of Medicine, has delivered 25 sets of twins, more than any other graduate. The school recognized his obstetrical work last year by formally presenting him with a toy stork.

F. D. Will Talk On Air Tonight

WASHINGTON, May 10 (INS)—President Roosevelt will deliver a speech tonight at 10:30 over an international radio hookup to the Pan-American Scientific Congress.

His talk is certain to have international repercussions. He was dictating the speech when word reached the White House of Germany's invasion of the low countries. He immediately tore up his notes to devote his attention to the new European crisis. Attaches said he would redraft the speech before nightfall.

In New England radio stations WEEI, WNAC and WAAB will broadcast the address.

Relief Roll Slavery Charge Under Probe

While the father of nine children battled for his life at Cambridge City Hospital today, authorities delving into the assault checked reports of corruption in Cambridge welfare administration which virtually "enslaved" the recipients.

One Cambridge city official may face criminal charges if stories that he stood by and countenanced the assault are proven, police indicated.

The victim, James Wilson, 42, of Putnam ave., Cambridge, a mechanic, declared he was attacked during an argument over an automobile repair bill for work he had done for a friend of the city official.

He is reported near death with a fractured skull and other injuries. Under arrest is Emile Lauziere, 36, of Madison ave., Cambridge, cafe employe, identified by Wilson as one of three assailants according to police.

Charges of welfare serfdom were made by Mrs. Eva M. Wilson, wife of the victim, who said her husband's name was taken off the rolls because he presented a bill for repairs to a friend of the politician under suspicion.

Babson for President On Dry Party Ticket

CHICAGO, May 10 (INS)—A new and revitalized Prohibition party all set to nominate Roger W. Babson, famous business statistician, for the presidency, today had its platform and proclaimed to the world its determination to deal with the liquor problem in a practical, effective manner.

"I wish to make it plain," Babson told International News Service, "that this is a new Prohibition party. It is not the old party. It is a complete reorganization."

Fresh Greens, Pork Best Buys in Market

Fresh arrivals of vegetables vied with pork at reduced prices for the spotlight in Faneuil Hall Market today.

Asparagus from Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Hudson river was added to varieties already on display.

Bunch beets from Norfolk, Va., listed at 10 cents with native beet greens at 50 cents a peck. Native outdoor dandelions are obtainable at 25 cents a peck.

A drop of five cents per pound brought pork for roasting to 25 cents as other meats generally held firm in price. Pork chops are selling at 30 cents a pound.

LAMB FLANKS

Another price drop was seen in forequarters of spring lamb priced at 18 cents a pound. Last week forequarters were selling at 20 cents.

Lamb flank for stewing at 8 cents a pound was considered a good buy. Hamburg was priced at 20 cents a pound and up, depending on quality; aitch bones of beef for roasting were 28 cents a pound; beef kidneys for stewing 15 cents each; whole or half hams 28 cents a pound; beef for stewing 20; middle rib corned beef, 18; beef for pot roast, 25; sweetbreads, 25.

Excellent top of the round was priced at 50 cents; bottom of the round 35 and 40; rump steak, 60; legs of spring lamb, 35; leg and loin, 35, and fresh calves' liver, 65.

In the poultry stalls prices remained practically unchanged with broilers priced at 30 and 35 cents a pound; roasting chickens, 35 and 38 a pound, up two and three cents over last week; fowl, 28 and 30 cents; turkey, 29 and 32; western and native geese, 25 and 35; squab 50 and 75 cents each and guinea chickens $1.90 per pair. Chicken livers were priced at 60 cents per pound.

SHAD GOOD BUY

In the fish department, salmon was moderately priced at 35 cents per pound and with warmer weather coming, marketmen were confident of heavy salmon sales. Selected large live lobsters sold at 33 cents per pound while selected live, medium lobsters sold at 35 cents per pound.

Fillet of haddock was priced at 25 cents per pound while a lower quality haddock was selling at 10 cents a pound. Tinker mackerel was featured at 18 cents a pound; mackerel spawn, 25; smoked finnan haddie, 20; butterfish, 20; roe shad, 30; swordfish, 40; fresh dressed flounders, 18; native halibut, 35; steak cod 18; oysters 45 a pint, and Ipswich clams, 40 cents for a three-quart basket.

Fresh Jack shad was a good buy at 18 cents while cured smoked fillets were popular at 28 cents. Fresh smelts sold at 25 cents a pound; shrimp at 40; scallops at 30 and crabmeat at 60 cents a pound.

Dairy products remained about the same as last week although marketmen predicted a stiff rise in the price of eggs. Large native eggs sold at 35 cents a dozen, medium, 30 and pullets 25. The best print butter was priced at 45 cents a pound while the best tub was 42 cents. One-pound bricks sold at 35 cents a pound.

In the fruit and vegetable stalls an unusually high grade eating apple was selling at 50 and 60 cents a dozen, depending on size, while juicy Florida oranges sold at 45 cents a dozen. California oranges remained about the same at 45 and 65 a dozen. Cantaloupes were 20 to 25 cents each.

DIGHTON GETS RACE HEARING

Once more reorganized, with out-of-state ownership of its stock virtually eliminated, the Bristol County Kennel Club, Inc., today won a new hearing on its petition to be allowed to run an 85 night dog racing meet at its Dighton track between June 3 and Sept. 12, inclusive.

The Massachusetts Racing Commission will hold the hearing at the North Dighton Recreation Hall May 17 at 7 p. m. The hearing will be public.

FIRST PETITION REJECTED

The Bristol County Kennel Club's first petition for a racing permit this year was refused by the state commission on the ground that the set-up of stockholders was not satisfactory.

Governor Saltonstall was understood to have taken the stand that corporations conducting racing meets in Massachusetts should be principally Massachusetts-owned.

To comply with the Governor's demand, the Kennel Club presented a new list of stockholders with only two out-of-state names retained on it.

CASEY HEADS GROUP

The officers, already approved by the Racing Commission, are Edward L. Casey, former Harvard football star, president; Edwin F. Hinton of Milton, treasurer, and Francis E. Leary of Fall River, corporation clerk.

The new list of stockholders includes the above officers and Edward F. Hood, former Harvard baseball player, of Dorchester; Cornelius J. Murphy of Norwood, Thomas H. O'Connor of Dorchester, Albert A. Burgess of Belmont, Elise Wheaton of Brighton, Henry Albiani of Boston, Harold A. Myers of Boston, Robert B. Flattery of Boston, Joseph McCarthy of Chelsea, John J. Hodge of Attleboro, Kathleen M. Trainor of Dorchester, Alice L. Murphy of Dorchester, Walter H. Barker of Taunton, Imelda Lowe of Brighton, the Northern Trust Co of Chicago and Helen Howard of Oak Park, Ill.

Sleep Powder Fells Divorcee

While a party was going on at her home, today police said Miss Arlene Magnuson, 30, of Gardner st., Allston, a divorcee, took an overdose of sleeping powder and collapsed.

She was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital by a guest, and police were called to make an investigation. Her name was placed on the danger list.

NAZIS REVIVE 'SWINGING-DOOR' STRATEGY OF 1914

New Weapons Strengthen Use Of 'Paris' Plan

By JAMES F. DOOLING

Her swift-struck victories in Central Europe and in the North apparently had oiled the hinges of Germany's long planned "swinging-door" offensive to the west today.

In 1914, this five-pronged attack failed its blitzkrieg objective—the capture of Paris—only because Gen. Helmuth von Moltke, German commander-in-chief, was forced to weaken one of his invading armies in order to police Belgium.

The big, black question mark that qualified Germany's lightning move into the low countries this morning was the same big black question-mark that threatened, then dispelled success a quarter of a century ago.

Today, from what sources of information came over radios and cables, the "swinging-door" offensive was definitely similar to the Von Schlieffen plan used by the Kaiser's armies.

The German is not quick to abandon a carefully studied plan. Because Von Moltke made a mistake in 1914, it is no guarantee that the same mistake will spell disaster today, according to the military strategists way of reckoning.

New Weapons

There was, however, a tremendous difference in the weapons employed.

Germany, enthused by her success in employing the quick-flashing air attack and the startling surprise of shock troops against an unarmed civilian populace in the north countries, has struck out with this two-fisted force against the friendly Netherlands, Belgium and tiny Luxembourg.

But there remained the question — whether more troops would be needed to police the invaded sections than could be spared for a concerted invasion of France.

If Germany needs these extra troops in the low countries, the aim of their objective might be lost as well as it was in 1914.

They tell a story of Queen Wilhelmina some time before the last Great Conflict. She had been invited to Germany to review a parade of the Kaiser's army. Pointing to one smartly goose-stepping unit of his Prussian Guard, the Hohenzollern emperor remarked:

"They are all eight feet tall, Your Majesty . . ."

Queen Had Answer

To which the young Queen of the Netherlands smiled and retorted

"The streets of Amsterdam can be flooded nine feet deep, Your Majesty . . ."

Only seven months ago Dr. Goebbels, Nazi chief propagandist, explained at great length that Germany had no intention of moving troops into Holland, but the Dutch remembered that from the time of the tribal invasions, down through the middle and late centuries of war, the low countries have been the corridor for invasions East or West.

During the winter, when the canals which present the Netherlands' strongest bulwark against invaders were frozen, there were continuous alarms. The army was kept in continual state of mobilization and demobilization. But the peace of the Netherlands was maintained.

Today the streets of Amsterdam could be flooded nine feet deep. It is spring.

Luxembourg can be expected to afford no more opposition to invading armies than she did at the start of the World War. Its people are of German blood, largely; they have only an infinitesimal force. Their resistance would be suicidal in their own estimation.

In the last war two of the five German armies concentrated on the "swinging-door" objective wheeled through Luxembourg to engage finally in the bitter battles of the Meuse-Argonne sector—and one to be stalemated at Verdun.

As long ago as last fall at the start of this latest conflict, German troops showed considerable activity in the Saarbrucken. Thus it is evident that the Luxembourg salient was long-planned.

Battled Belgians

Belgium was in a far different position today than in 1914 when the invading German armies suddenly struck.

By terms of her neutrality the Belgian armies were still unmobilized in early August, 1914. The German avalanche was upon the country and had silenced all the Liege forts before an effective opposition could be advanced.

Gen. Alexander von Kluck swinging around Liege, was able to bottle the Belgians in fortified Antwerp and hit at the French flank.

Today no such development appeared likely — although everything is possible in the blitzkrieg waged by Germany's forces from the air.

Her vaunted mechanized land troops could expect to meet strenuous opposition.

The countryside of the Belgians is covered with new tank defenses. She had movable steel gates on rollers, calculated to wreck the action of any tractor, when chained one to the other.

Germany had swallowed up nearly all of Belgium's territory by September of 1914, extending her battle lines well into France from Dixmude, a few miles from the North Sea, around Arras, Amiens, Meaux and thence waveringly north to unfallen Verdun.

Nazi strategists today had no such high hopes of coving such a salient, it was generally believed.

The "Swinging-Door" was a harrower door this time — depending on speed and a cutting movement rather than extension and a crushing blow.

Briefly, the original "Swinging-Door" strategy of the Germans was this

The First Army, under von Kluck, having cut across Belgium and isolated her armies to the north, was to describe a wide arc and cut in on Paris from the southwest.

Armies Two and Three, also cutting across Belgium, were to describe less wider arcs and force the French armies eastward

Nazis Face Obstacle

Army Four, crossing Luxembourg, was to ford the rivers Meuse and Aisne, north of the Fifth Army — commanded by the Crown Prince—and complete the proposed encirclement of the French. Paris, then of its own momentum, would fall.

Von Kluck, instead of following his plans minutely, veered eastward, through lack of supporting forces, and a French officer, at the time a colonel, now Commander-in-Chief Gamelin of the Allied forces, won permission from Marshal Joffre to attack.

The "Swinging-Door" was cracked. Then it splintered.

Another obstacle faced the Nazi forces today in the strategy with which she apparently hoped to bring France to her knees.

Now the Maginot line—which France, and possibly Germany too, thinks too expensive to be stormed — extends along the Belgium border. It is not continuous as that flanking the Nazi border, but it is planned to be effective against any wide troop movement.

Germany had today to face an army of Belgians nearly ten times as strong as were able to be mobilized in the last conflict. In case of their defeat, they could move over to the refuge of the "Little Maginot" line as the Belgian-French border of defense is termed.

From the fortified sector of Liege to Antwerp extends the modern Albert Canal which is almost as wide as a fair river and some twenty feet deep, fortified with rapid-firing gun emplacements.

The Dutch, months ago had flooded strategic sections of their country. The Belgians had not yet disclosed whether they made use of the Albert canal.

So long as last November the London Daily Telegraph and Morning Post presented to the British public what it said was the official plan of the Nazis for the invasion which came to pass today.

Set Invasion Date

At the time the London paper confidently asserted that the invasion was scheduled for Nov. 11. Many persons agreed, prior to Nov. 11, that some startling strike would be made by Hitler.

The newspaper said that the plan called for an attack on the Netherlands first, Belgium second, Luxembourg's invasion was taken for granted.

What stymied Hitler's alleged plan at that time was the understanding between King Leopold of Belgium and Queen Wilhelmina of the Netherlands, it was asserted.

The very day before the anniversary of the Armistice of the last World War, the paper went on to say, so many German troops were concentrated on the Belgian frontiers that Leopold called a meeting of his military agreed that a threat to Belgium by certain moves against Holland would be met by Belgian resistance

Word of this decision reached Germany. The British claim it was only this that delayed the proposed "Swinging Door" offensive until today.

Germany's seizure of the Netherlands opens up a new front of speculation as to whether she will try to attack France on her northern flank.

THE CONSTITUTION of the United States contains a provision that this country cannot go to war except with the consent of Congress.

Now the Congress is a democratically elected group of 531 members—435 in the House of Representatives and 96 in the Senate—individually elected BY THE PEOPLE resident within their separate districts or States.

In theory at least, therefore, the United States cannot go to war without the consent OF THE PEOPLE.

Why should Congress, then, not be entirely willing to CONSULT the people on such an important matter as going to war?

In the event an emergency should arise involving a decision between peace and war, should not the Congress be very sure what the people WANT?

A measure which should be very helpful to the Congress in such a situation has recently been introduced by Representative Hamilton Fish, in the form of a joint resolution providing for a national referendum to be taken before conscription of residents of the United States for service in armed forces abroad.

The effect of this measure, if enacted, might very well be to keep the United States OUT of foreign war.

That might easily be contrary to the wishes of a majority of the members of Congress.

It might even be contrary to the desires and interests of powerful groups to which the Congress ordinarily listens, including the Executive and Administrative departments of the government.

BUT WHY SHOULD CONGRESS EVER COMMIT THE COUNTRY TO A WAR THE PEOPLE DO NOT WANT?

And why should it ever listen to any voice, even a powerful Executive voice, in conflict with the desires of the people?

Congress should be glad to pass the Fish Resolution.

It is the essence of essential democracy.

And Congress should be glad to be democratic and BE AMERICAN.

TABBY, THE HOUSE CAT, seems to be recapturing her once-firm hold on the American heart. That is, if Tabby's sudden prominence in the news can be considered an indication of her popularity.

A New York Mirror cameraman snapped a particularly interesting picture of a kitten a few weeks ago and, almost before the ink was dry on the paper, nearly twenty thousand persons were clamoring for copies to frame and treasure.

Photographer Simard of the Boston American staff made the accompanying "shot" of his pet, Tommy, yawning after an all-night mee-ow-ow serenade on the back fence.

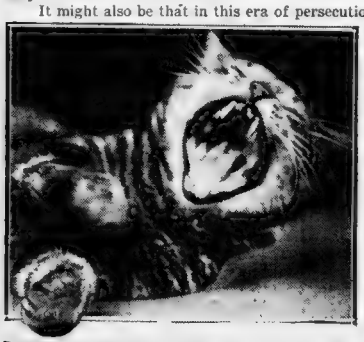
And Tommy, too, is assured a conspicuous place in the feline hall of fame.

Meanwhile, a whole neighborhood in Philadelphia is mourning because a 25-year-old cat, mother of 173 offspring and reputedly the oldest of her kind in the United States, has belatedly departed for Cat Paradise, or wherever it is dead cats go.

What explains this sudden return of Tabby to popular favor?

We do not know. Perhaps pet fashions like clothes fashions move in cycles. Dogs have monopolized the spotlight for years. Maybe the cat's turn has come.

It might also be that in this era of persecution and disappearing freedom in many parts of the world, the good people of the United States, fearful of the threats to their own freedom, are looking upon the cat as a kind of symbol of liberty.



TOMMY YAWNS BOREDOM AND DEFIANCE
Will Cats Supplant Dogs in Public Favor?

Everybody knows the cat's uncompromising hatred of coercion. Restraint is the last thing in the world to which she will submit.

We shall not enter the ancient controversy and argue that the cat is the dog's mental superior.

We prefer to let our readers decide that. What do they think? All are invited to write us and express an opinion.

However, no less an authority than the Encyclopedia Americana says:

"The cat has great intelligence; in fact, is one of the most intelligent if not the MOST INTELLIGENT, of the domestic animals, and it is this fact that precludes the possibility of teaching the average cat tricks.

"The cat sees through the maneuver, and refuses to be made a fool of."

HARRY TAMMEN, Denver newspaper publisher, spent $250,000 in California trying to breed elephants. Wanted them for a circus he owned. Five baby elephants were born but each of these was crushed to death by its mother. Assumption is the mother didn't want her children to live in captivity . . . Most all women could have good figures if they had the ambition, energy and intelligence to exercise about five minutes a day.

WILL IT BE a girl or boy? Mary Hoyer of London claims she can answer this question many months in advance by use of "a radio-active element" in form of a tiny instrument which reacts differently for each sex. Mary also claims she can tell childless couples whether the wife or husband is to blame for the lack of blessed events.

THERE SHOULD BE a speed limit of 40 miles per hour at night, especially on Friday nights, when those students start tearing hither and yon in their hopped-up jallopies . . . What is America's greatest city? New York, of course. And in our "greatest" city between 1934-1939 more than one-third of the total population has been on some kind of government relief.

WHY IS IT the appearance of some club women is reminiscent of Dean Swift's remark: "She looks as if her clothes were thrown on her with a pitchfork!"

IF AND WHEN Goering launches that threatened big drive from the air, it will not be directed at England, but at France. That has always been Goering's idea. All this hurling of threats at Britain and saying nothing about France is designed to lull the French into a feeling of comparative security. A. Hitler, H. Goering and B. Mussolini would have launched that big drive long before this but are fearful their civilian populations couldn't stand the inevitable retaliation. I think the boys are in possession of something there. "Why don't you build air raid shelters here?" I asked a government official in Rome last June. And he said: "If we did it would make the people nervous."

CHARLES S. DANA of Vermont claimed to have had pie for breakfast, luncheon and dinner for 70 years. And that he had eaten one hundred and ten different kinds of pie. Have had pie for breakfast and have long been an enthusiastic pie consumer, but cannot say I have eaten more than 22 kinds of pie. Say, what became of Washington pie? Haven't seen that around for years.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

-:- -:- MY DAY

NEW YORK CITY, May 10—I visited my mother-in-law Wednesday morning and was fortunate enough to find my husband's aunt, Mrs. Forbes, there.

I have come to the conclusion that time lays a light hand on their generation. Perhaps they had a vigor which was denied to the rest of us.

In any case, Mrs. Forbes is as keenly alert today to what is going on in the world as the majority of young people, and my mother-in-law announced that she would like to bring up her grandchildren all over again—which shows an amount of energy and conviction given to few parents of later generations.

GOING FROM this visit to the luncheon given by the "Youth Builders" was an extremely interesting contrast.

That older generation undoubtedly feels that their impress should be very firm upon the youth around them, whereas the emphasis in the "Youth Builders" organization is the development of the young people themselves, the maturing of their thought, and, through judicious questioning, bringing out their ability to express themselves.

Five of them, ranging in age from 10 to 15, put on a forum for us. They had been given the subject several days ago, but no previous rehearsal had taken place.

IGNACE PADEREWSKI
His Fund Aids Refugees

These youngsters are public schoool youngsters from all over the city, and for most of them this is an extra-curricular activity. They choose their own subjects for debate and prepare their own material. They publish a magazine, and their own editorial board chooses the contributions it considers the best, and the "Youth Builders" mimeograph the pages.

I spent a short time also in the morning visiting the Paderewski Fund headquarters and listening to reports of their work.

Like all other organizations raising money for relief abroad, they do not find it easy, but they have succeeded in sending food and supplies of various kinds and are, of course, continuing their efforts.

The committee is such an outstanding and able one, and so many people in this country have known and loved Mr. Paderewski, that I think on a nation-wide basis we will contribute to the relief of the people of Poland.

I UNDERSTAND so well the feelings of many of our own people who are suffering in this country, and who feel that the first duty of citizens of the United States is to help their own.

We have a government, however, and a people capable of really meeting the needs in our country at present.

In the long run, our duty is to solve the basic economic problem which has borne down upon our people in different ways in different localities. We also have people able to meet the appeal for suffering humanity in other parts of the world. I think we should recognize that meeting this appeal is not only a call upon the Christian spirit, but is a recognition of the fact that oppression and misery anywhere menaces the spirit of democracy all over the world and therefore is a concern of ours.

ANOTHER MUSICAL FOR ALICE FAYE

By Louella O. Parsons

Alice Faye

HOLLYWOOD, May 10—I call this a musical year for Alice Faye. She just finished singing in "Lillian Russell" and her next picture, "Down Argentine Way," has her warbling at a high speed. Today, just to complete the cycle, "Tin Pan Alley," an original by Pamela Harris, was bought for Alice. This is really a history of those ditties that had their origin in the old Tin Pan alley and what a lot of them there were—catchy, wonderful numbers. Combined with all this is a heart-interest yarn.

Since Alice seems to be pining for Tony and Tony Martin for Alice, she ought to be able to act better than ever before. I am basing it on "Lillian Russell" as she drops all those little mannerisms with which we found fault—and that she never gives an outstanding performance.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: The Tyrone Powers are getting ready for a very, very happy event—a visit from old man stork himself; was it by design or accident that Robert Preston walked into the Grace Hayes Lodge by his lonesome where Dorothy Lamour and a young man were dining? Preston joined them; Mrs. Jack Oakie, who has been very ill, is home from a visit to her family in the South; Helen Mack's new heart beat is Don Terry; George Jessel and his bride, Lois Andrews, have a real estate agent scouring for a house with a swimming pool. So it means they are headed in this direction.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

BIG MIKE ATLAS arrogantly slammed the door of the car, grabbed his much-battered bag and waved a thank you to the wheezy Ford as it rattled off the main highway, leaving him standing in the rain out in the middle of nowhere.

"Be dark soon and still 50 miles to go to the Navy Yard," he mused to himself.

A big car seemed to hesitate and then stop about 10 yards ahead. "Jump in sailor, you might wash all the salt off you standing in the rain." The crisp voice invited.

"A wise guy," Mike muttered to himself. "I'll show him who is salty."

HE CLAMBERED in, and after the usual formalities of telling his ship, rate and so forth, unlimbered his tongue to show the wise civilian what a real sailor can see in three months.

Having just completed three months at boot camp and a month at sea, Mike felt very worldly and all-service.

"Yes, sir, you should see some of the heavy weather I've seen. You wouldn't talk about a little rain like this after that. Why the sea would frighten a guy like you, but not a real sailor."

The driver just listened, grunting a "That's right," or a "How exciting" every once in a while. He might have been smiling, but Mike was too engrossed in his own story to notice.

WHEN they got to the outskirts of Boston, the driver said, "Where do you get off, sailor?"

"You can luff up into the wind any place and let me drop off when we get near the Navy Yard," Mike saltily replied.

"The Navy Yard, I'll take you right there. I have to go down that way myself." The man at the wheel answered.

At the gate, the driver waited till the gates swung wide and the Marine saluted then drove down the dock to where the Cayuga was tied up. He said:

"This is our home, lad. Don't she look clean?"

"Oh! yes, I forgot. I'm Ensign Briggs transfered to the Cayuga yesterday. Shake, sailor, and thanks for the sea stories."

A young man aboard the USS Chelan, C. G., wrote this story and wins five dollars. Write one as good and win five dollars, too. Send your story to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. Five dollars is paid weekly to the writer of the week's best contribution.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

YOU'RE MAD. Somebody has disappointed you terribly—failed to live up to your ideals.

So now you're shocked, hurt, disgusted—plenty peeved; for this offense wasn't a common misdemeanor. You trusted him. You believed in him. You believed that he would fit a certain noble pattern of life.

It was a high honor to expect him to do that. It put a big responsibility on him. He should have been grateful.

But he wasn't! Instead, he disregarded your ideals entirely and yielded to his own impulses.

YES; he broke faith with you, and with the finer things of life. So, of course, you have a right to be righteously indignant.

He imposed on you, you say to yourself. He abused your confidence and betrayed your faith. He was an ingrate and a cheat. And now you despise him. You try to make him feel like 30 cents. And you're bitterly sorry about yourself.

You go around telling people what a terrible person he turned out to be, and how badly he used you.

You say, "Well, you can't expect to make a silk purse out of a sow's ear; and it doesn't do to throw pearls before swine."

That's how you feel about someone who fails to live up to your ideals.

BUT HOW do you get that way? Where do you get the big idea that your ideals are the only true and beautiful pattern of life?

You act as if you had cornered the ten commandments—BUT WHY? Don't you know that our ideas are all-of-a-piece with the rest of us; that they correspond with our general development?

There is no such thing as a fixed ideal for human behavior; no unchangeable standard of right and wrong. Each man makes his own ideals according to his own capacity, and changes them with his spiritual development.

So no one has "failed" you or cheated you or been ungrateful to you. You haven't a particle of excuse for self pity. If your feelings were hurt, that's just your bad luck. You had no right to have such feelings.

And as for defending the finer things of life—baloney!

You're not indignant because some one has done righteous dirt. YOU'RE JUST MAD BECAUSE YOU CAN'T HAVE YOUR OWN WAY.

GREAT BRITAIN TAKES OVER ICELAND

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—In a lightning-like move to bar Germany from a strategic base in the far north, Great Britain today took protective custody of tiny Iceland.

The island which is linked to German-occupied Denmark by its allegiance to King Christian X, will be under British protection only until the "conclusion of hostilities," it was announced.

It was not believed that the British force—of an undetermined size—encountered any opposition from German civilians who are known to have entered Iceland since the outbreak of the European war.

England, in explaining the move stressed that it had no intention of interfering with the existing administration and shortly after the occupation the foreign office announced it already was negotiating a trade agreement.

The foreign office, in explaining the move, said that "it is clear that in the face of an attack even on a very small scale, the Icelandic government would be unable to prevent its country from falling completely into German hands." The island has a defense force of only about 70 police.

The little northern kingdom is especially important in the Allied scheme of things as an excellent submarine base—as well as an airplane and seaplane base.

Although the move was dramatically timed and enforced, it was not entirely unexpected by observers, who recalled that on April 10 the Allies announced that they would prevent any German landing on Iceland, Greenland or Denmark's Faroe Islands.

With that announcement, Iceland's parliament took full control of the nation's affairs.

A day later, First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill told the House of Commons that Britain was occupying the Faroe Islands and that "no German will be allowed to set his foot there with impunity."

Iceland, about the size of Kentucky, has been a sovereign state since the signing of the Danish-Icelandic Union pact of 1918. It lies in the North Atlantic about 200 miles off the coast of Greenland and its main industries are fishing and sheep farming. Its principal exports are fish, frozen mutton and wool.

Only about one-fourth of its 40,000 square miles is habitable and its population of 118,000 is concentrated in the coastal lowlands. The capital, Reykjavik, has a population of 36 1000.

Before the war, experts recalled, Germany sent frequent expeditions into Iceland, nominally for scientific purposes and in connection with projected air routes.

When the war broke out there was in Iceland a considerably larger number of Germans than was justified, the British felt, and since the outbreak the number had been augmented by the crews of several shipwrecked German vessels.

The British described the German consular official in Iceland, Herr Gerlach, as a "notorious Nazi." His activities were regarded by the British as "extra-consular and political in nature."

Besides its strategic value for airplane and submarine bases Iceland is conidered highly important for weather obervation stations to guide shipping and aviation.

MILLION NAZIS ATTACK BELGIUM AND HOLLAND

aid before him in the World War. German warplanes raided Brussels, killing two children and wounding 50 persons.

Allies Rush Armies to Belgium

One report said German infantry had been halted at least temporarily at the frontier while a British-French army was reported in Paris to be moving rapidly across the Belgian-French border to meet the invaders.

Germany carried the air war into the French interior and into England, where four incendiary bombs were reported dropped at Chilam, near famous Canterbury, 40 miles southeast of London.

France reported she was hurrying troops to aid the Belgians. The airports at Metz, according to Berlin, was bombed out of existence.

Germany caught Great Britain in the midst of a cabinet crisis over the failure of the Allied Norwegian campaign. Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain arranged to see King George VI, after he had conferred twice with his war cabinet and chiefs of staff, amid rumors that he would seek to oenlist Labor party support for a revised government.

Parliament, in recess until May 21, was expected to be recalled, perhaps next Tuesday; Whitsuntide holidays were cancelled.

BRITAIN PLEDGES AID

Britain promised full Allied help to the invaded neutrals and announced her "protective" occupation of Iceland, north Atlantic island tied through the Danish throne with Denmark, to prevent German seizure.

Switzerland, nestling in her mountains between France and Germany ordered complete mobilization.

Germans closed the German-Hungarian frontier.

Italy took Germany's action as another in which Allies were "beaten once again in swiftness."

But back of this calmwas feverish diplomatic activity, a high point in which was an urgent summons to United States Ambasseador William Phillips to see Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

INCREASES HITLER'S FOES

Germany's sudden expansion of the war's scope, close on the heels of her occupation of Denmark and conquest of two-thirds of Norway, gave a new lineup to the Allied powers which now include the British and French empires, Poland, Norway, Belgium and The Netherlands.

Germany accused the lowland countries of conspiring with the Allies against Germany, charges which both Belgium and The Netherlands stoutly denied.

Holland had 400,000 men, but her major hope was founded on a complex system of water defenses with which she flooded her lowlands to bog down the German war machine. But it seemed as the Blitzkrieg raged that the Germans had hurdled the water defenses by plane.

Both Holland and Belgium were hopelessly outnumbered unless the British and French bring their weight into the balance.

The British government ominously warned, however, "it must be recognized that once again Germany has gained a military advantage by taking the initiative in attacking neutral countries."

MILLIONS UNDER ARMS

France has several million men under arms, most of them manning the Maginot line, where the war has been stalemated since it started, Sept. 1, with Germany's invasion of Poland.

Britain has about 200,000 soldiers on the continent, concentrated principally on the French-Belgian frontier.

The Belgian government declared its capital, Brussels, was an "open city"—unfortified—and thus not subject to attack.

The Belgians asserted no troops would be allowed to pass through the capital. They hoped to save it from the ravages of war.

Civilians streamed out of Amsterdam. Highways were clogged with autos and other vehicles piled high with bedding and other household goods.

German raiders were driven off Dover, English channel port, other points on the southeast coast and the Thames estuary.

The British ministry of home defense warned all civilian air raid defense units to be on the alert for attack.

Paris was under air raid alarm for one hour and 48 minutes. German planes bombed the De Bion airport at Lyon in south central France and one invader was shot down. All French fighting forces were called to the alert.

Initial reports from the invaded neutrals said Germany was putting into full effect her now famous technique of lightning attack.

IN ENEMIES' UNIFORMS

Nazi troops some clad in uniforms of the invaded countries were dropped by parachute from transport planes. German bombers attacked airports and other strategic points. Land forces struck at the Belgian and Netherlands frontiers.

German troops swept into Luxembourg despite sporadic resistance by border guards and the small Luxembourg army.

Frontier guards resisted when the Germans approached and tried to prevent them from seizing telephone lines. The Germans opened fire immediately, killing several Luxembourgers. The Nazis then marched in as the government members fled.

United States Ambassador William C. Bullitt telephoned the State Department from Paris that Germans had bombarded a number of fortified towns in France, "such as Dunkirk and Calais."

A declaration of war by the Netherlands against Germany was announced in New York by Dr. Alexander Loudon, the Dutch minister to the United States.

Reich planes were attacking shipping off the coast of northern France, whence the roar of heavy detonations, presumably from bombs, was heard for an hour and a half after dawn.

Berlin announced mines had been laid outside all Netherlands and Belgian ports "to safeguard German troops against enemy operations."

An air battle was fought over Amsterdam at 4:20 a. m. (11 p. m. Thursday, E. S. T.). Fighter planes dived on bombers believed to be German and columns of smoke rose from Schiphol airdrome near Amsterdam.

Throughout the Netherlands intense air activity was reported, with squadrons of foreign planes greeting Denhelder naval base. Six German planes were reported over Ijmuiden. Parachutists landed at Maarden, Shedrecht and near Delft, only 13 miles from The Hague. A hundred parachutists landed at Dodrecht.

Six German planes bombed the airdrome at Welschap near Eindhoven. Three German planes attempted to land at Soesburg in Zeeland and were fired on by defenders.

Hundreds of parachutists landed at Hooge and Zwaluwe where a bridge forms the principal link between north and south Holland. Others landed on Rozenburg island near Rotterdam.

RIBBENTROP TALKS

Even as these German soldiers were carrying out their orders with lightning rapidity, Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop summoned the representatives of Belgium, Holland and Luxembourg and read them a memorandum warning that resistance will be broken by all means.

Hitler himself issued a proclamation to the people and the army, telling them that the hour had come for the great test.

Whether the whole Western Front will flame into action shortly remains to be seen. It may be assumed, however, that the German air force will be hosed by a wide scale over England and France.

Hitler held a special war council meeting shortly after midnight, just before the marching orders were given.

Germany's blitzkrieg came over a wide expanse, on a great scale, with staggering suddenness and timing.

Within a few minutes after the wail of air raid sirens in Brussels, German machines were over the Belgian capital's airport.

Immediately they let loose a shower of bombs on the airport. Numerous houses in the vicinity were wrecked by the detonation of huge bombs.

While the Germans attacked the Hilversum airport in central Holland, muffled explosions were audible to listeners on the Hilversum radio in Britain.

Twenty-three German bombing planes flew at 20,000 feet over Reenen in a westerly direction—apparently bound for England—and 15 Heinkel bombers were observed near by.

First land invasion of Holland's perilous dyke county was reported at 3 a. m. (10 p. m. EDT).

Apparently the thrust through The Netherlands had this dual goal: To provide jumping off places for Reich assaults on London and give Germany a land route to outflank the Maginot line, considered absolutely impregnable to a frontal attack.

Allied Armies Sweep Over Belgian Border

mals in answer to appeals from the Belgian and Netherlands governments.

Minister of Information Louis Frossard, personally reading news of war developments over the radio, declared:

"No comment is necessary. The hour has come for every Frenchman to do his duty stiffly and resolutely."

Frossard pledged news of all further developments would be given out by the French "with scrupulous exactitude."

BELGAINS MOP UP

The Belgian army was reported by Havas to be busy mopping up small detachments of German parachutists who landed on Belgian territory.

Several German planes were shot down from the numerous squadrons which flew over Belgium.

The War Department spokesman said there was no precise information in Paris of the exact line of march of the Germans. The Germans, he continued, are following the usual tactics of sending shock forces in advance, preceded by intense aerial bombardment of roads, bridges, railroads and air fields.

The bombardments, he said, are on a vast scale in "Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg and France, those in France being notably in the eastern and northern areas."

Notes from Belgium and Luxembourg appealing for French and British aid were made public by the foreign ministry at noon.

BELGIUM'S PLEA FOR AID

The Belgian note said

"The Belgian government is determined to resist the aggression with all its force.

"The government of the King is firmly confident that, as in the past, the joint efforts of France, England and Belgium will assure triumph of the right."

The Luxembourg note, delivered to the foreign ministry by the Duke's charge d'affaires, pointed out the country was without arms and asked French and "for the re establishment of the independence and intergrity of Luxembourg."

Premier Reynaud, reporters said was holding conferences with the idea of altering the makeup of his cabinet.

The broad French military activity came after German bombers had struck deep into France.

While the western front remained comparatively calm, raiding German airplanes were declared to have bombed numerous cities back of the line. The French officially listed Lyon, Nancy, Colmar, Pontoise and Luxeuil.

AIR RAID CASUALTIES

There were killed and wounded in the towns, but the figures were not released to the press.

After an early morning raid in which German planes were driven off by anti-aircraft fire, Parisians took news of the war developments calmly.

There was no report of bombings in the Paris zone, but the French radio renewed warning the people to carry their gas masks at all times and seek refuge in air raid shelters immediately on alarms.

A French spokesman called "pure inventions" the charges of German Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop that English troops had landed in the Dutch ports and that the Allies were preparing military occupation of Holland and Belgium.

All indications were that Europe's war at last had broken out in its expected major proportions.

On every hand were signs that a life and death struggle between Germany and the Allies was at hand.

Nazi Sea Sleds, Ships Ready to Invade England

BUCHAREST, May 10 (INS)—A report that Nazi Germany is considering an invasion of England by sea was received by military circles in Bucharest today.

The Nazis, this report said, plan to use fast sea-sleds powered by aviation motors and propellers, each carrying 80 men, guns and equipment, supported by war planes operating from Norwegian bases.

Two hundred "pocket submarines" and sea sleds are ready for the attack 50 miles off the English coast, the report said.

Nazis Lay Invasion To Unneutral Acts

whereas on the other frontiers no forts of any kind have been built.

5—"The Dutch coast likewise is an open and unguarded means of entry for the British airforce. One hundred twenty-seven cases in which British military aircraft crossed the Dutch territory were porved indisputedly in every detail and the Dutch government was duly notified. In reality the number of violations was far greater.

6—"Still more striking proof of the real attitude of Belgium and Holland, however, is the concentration of mobilized Belgian and Dutch troops directed solely against Germany.

MASSED THEIR TROOPS

7—"This massing of Belgian and Dutch troops on the German frontier took place at a time when Germany had concentrated no troops on the Belgian or Dutch frontiers, but when Britain and France, to the contrary, had assembled a strong mechanical attacking force on the Franco-Belgian frontier.

8—"Documents in the possession of the German government proved that preparations made by Britain and France in Belgian and Dutch territory for an attack on Germany already have reached an advanced stage . . . We have undeniable proof that Anglo-French attacks upon Germany were imminent and that this attack on the Ruhr will occur through Belgium and Holland."

"In a struggle of life and death," said the memorandum, the German government does not intend to await attack by the British and French inactively. . . . It has therefore issued orders for its trops to safeguard the neutrality of the two countries with all the military measures at the disposal of the Reich."

INVADERS NOT FOES!

Von Ribbentrop's note then solemnly announced and the foreign minister impressively underscored every word by thumping his fingers on the long green table:

"German soldiers are not entering Holland and Belgium as enemies, for the German government neither desired nor brought about these developments.

"The German government does not intend by these measures to attack the integrity of the kingdom of Belgium or the kingdom of Holland or their possessions, their property in Europe, or their colonies either now or in the future."

The note closed with an ultimatum and the threat to the Belgian and Dutch governments.

"The Belgian and Dutch governments today still have it in their power to safeguard the welfare of their people at the last moment by insuring no resistance is offered to the German troops," it said.

"If German troops encounter opposition in Belgium and Holland, it will be crushed with every means.

"The Belgian and Dutch governments alone will bear the responsibility for the consequences and bloodshed which then will be unavoidable."

The note added:

"The German government is obliged also to extend the military operations undertaken to ward off the attack through the territory of Luxembourg."

CALL CRIPPLES TO WAR

The news of the invasion failed to catch the Germans as unprepared as the Scandinavian coup a month ago yesterday.

For days the Reich has been calling reserves in an unprecedented manner.

From every side evidence poured into the Associated Press office that not only men up into the 50's were being drafted, but even World War veterans who lost an arm or a leg were being called to take the places of military office workers sent to the front.

Reports from the Dutch and Belgian frontiers brought back by travelers unanimously agreed that roads and railways to both borders were choked.

Patriotic Germans openly boasted to foreign correspondents that Germany had completed the minutest details, down to supplying 185,000 rubber boats for navigating the flood areas of Holland.

In retrospect, the German propaganda minister's recent release of the reported telephone conversation between Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Reynaud of France acquired new meaning.

WOOS PUBLIC'S FAVOR

Apparently German authorities were anxious to impress the German people with the Reich's intelligence service.

This was done so the German people would believe more implicitly that that service again had succeeded in forestalling Allied action.

In the foreign office supreme confidence was shown that Holland "will be pacified" within 20 hours.

Nobody would entertain the view that the Netherlands and Belgium would hold out.

Informed sources also asserted Premier Mussolini of Italy would not enter the war for some weeks now.

Allies Rush Lowands Aid

would be recalled before May 21.

Political observers expressed belief that the governmental crisis, which reached an acute stage last night when Laborites refused to participate in the government, had been ended by the swift war developments.

Germany's blitzkreig, these sources said, made Chamberlain's warnings of danger in the Low Countries look better now than they did when given as extenuation of the British withdrawal in Norway.

After the Cabinet meeting Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, left 10 Downing st. by the back door, pausing only to tell a newspaper photographer:

"I think you will understand plenty happened last night and something is happening today."

Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, first sea lord and chief of the British naval staff, greeted reporters upon leaving Chamberlain's residence with these words:

"Well, it's started at last."

SHIPPING ATTACKED

At this moment shipping along the sea coast was being subjected to terrific attack. From dawn onward anti-aircraft guns and British fighter planes were constantly in action.

Communications with Brussels, Amsterdam and other cities of the Low Countries were cut off.

The statement issued by the ministry of home security, emphasizing the possibility if not probability of attacks upon England, said:

"In consequence of events in Belgium and Holland, all civil defense and air raid precautions services should be most alert and carry their gas masks once more.

"The public should acquaint themselves with the position of shelters and first-aid posts.

"Householders are recommended to overhaul their domestic preparations against air attacks."

Blitzkrieg on Holland

man machine-gunners landed by parachutes in the Netherlands interior.

The Netherlands air force also too kto the skies, joining patrols of British, French and Belgian planes, and it was reported that at least six German planes were shot down in the first hour of warfare.

From The Hague flew the Netherlands foreign affairs and colonial ministers, seeking liaison with Allied leaders in London, lest the Neterlands be swept by German conquerors before effective help could be given to stop them.

The Dutch army was said to have been fully prepared for the invasion. Queen Wilhelmina's soldiery was said to be putting up strong resistance in the east despite one German thrust said to have carried the invasion 15 miles within the border.

At various points German transports dumped parachute shock troops who came billowing down to earth for rearguard assaults on the Dutch. Many of these men were reported wiped out.

Bridges over the Maas and Waal rivers had been blown up to block the overland advance of the Germans. There were indications the Netherlands, too, had released the full force of her inundation defenses in threatened areas.

Despite the stubborn resistance of the Dutch air force and anti-aircraft batteries German planes landed troops at interior points while Hitler's power-diving bombers blasted at strategic airdromes.

The Germans heavily bombed Amsterdam's airport at Schiphol, but were blocked from landing there by a screening barrage of anti aircraft fire.

The explosion of bombs could be heard plainly in Amsterdam, but the people 'here went about their business much as usual. The only other outward indication of a departure from normal were queues in front of Amsterdam's banks.

The government immediately put into force plans for civil defense. A blackout was ordered tonight. Voluntary civil militia in Amsterdam was mobilized and efforts were made to frustrate any "fifth column" activities.

The Dutch had before them the recent lesson of German's invasion of Norway in which confusion of orders, sabotage and treachery within Norway aided the Germans.

All Germans in the Netherlands were ordered to remain in their houses.

Manners

Divorcee's Wedding

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1—Is it proper for a divorcee to have a formal announcement of her engagement? She has a chi'd about three years of age.

2—Is it proper to have a bridal shower for her?

3—Is it proper for her to have a church wedding?

O.

1—The engagement of a divorcee should be announced as quietly as possible. That is, she and her fiance tell the news to their relatives and close friends and write notes to those who live too far away to be told by word of mouth.

2—Customarily, showers are not given before a second marriage.

3—The divorcee should talk over with the minister the question of a church wedding. It depends on the denomination of the church, its regulations.

You Can Be Beautiful

Here's a Manicure Kit That Leads Double Life

By ARLINE GOULD

IT HAS taking ways, a clever "Pickpocket"! You'll be so charmed that you'll succumb to this newest of manicure kits instantly. Just about the right size to fit in your fist . . . or tuck into luggage . . . and later you'll be carrying it to the beach with cigarettes and make-up substituted temporarily for the nail beautifiers, because it is waterproof, sandproof pique and undeniably chic!

You'll wonder how it can be done . . . the price of but $1 . . . because the full-size vial of nail polish is made by one of the most famous houses in America, and costs over half the price for the kit! With it is a large bottle of polish remover, the lubricant type which gives each nail a little strengthening treatment every time it's used. There is also a roll of cotton, emery board and orange sticks.

You'll notice that when you slip out the cotton roll, the band is just the right size to hold a lipstick . . . another evidence of the double-life the "pickpocket" is prepared to lead!

If there's anything smarter than prancing polka dots for summer sports wear . . . or even for terrace and resort dancing . . . it's candy stripes. And vice versa. So this company solved the problem of which to feature by having both! You'll love the beach-bright colors on a sleek white ground. And there are all the newest smartest nail lacquer tints from which to choose.

We award an orchid to this kit also for its nicety of finish. The waterproof pique is actually lined, and the closing is one of the new hair-line slide fasteners.

If you'd like to know all about this unusual double-life manicure kit, phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, week-days except Saturday until 5:30, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ultra--Smart--That's It!

IT'S NEW to wear jewelry that gives a striped effect . . . it's new to carry an ultra-smart manicure kit . . . find out about it by reading Arline Gould's story!

Official List of Boston's Debs for 1940-'41

By BETTY ALDEN

EACH SPRING when the leaves on the trees are as large as a mouse's ear, says an old legend, the Indians planted their corn . . . and in Boston, when the tulips begin to bloom in Beacon Hill window boxes, the Parents' League announces the deb list and a new crop of debutantes is born . . .

This year, to save parents from numerous phone calls and letters from florists, dress shops, caterers and everyone else who has something to sell a debutante, the conservative Parents' League decided not to make the list public . . . But if Hitler can tap the wires on Chamberlain's telephone calls it's small wonder that Boston's deb list has leaked out . . .

Anyway, here 'tis, containing the names of 129 daughters of our first families . . .

Heads the List

HEADING the list is Faith Atkins, daughter of Mrs. Gordon S. Rentschler of Locust Valley, L. I., who will make her Boston debut under the wing of Mrs. Frederick Deane of West Hill pl.

Old Fashioned Bread

Old fashioned bread was not, I'd say, a novelty in Grandma's day. Good bread was then the daily joy of every healthy girl and boy. Within each loaf, so firm and sweet, were butter, honey, milk and wheat, in which lived vitamins contented—although they'd not yet been invented.

Those were the days! But O, alas, a tragic change soon came to pass. The luscious loaf from Grandma's hand, folks jilted for another brand. Mothered by a steel machine, its size was wondrous to be seen. "The baker used more flour?" you say: "more milk, more eggs?" Dear reader, nay! He just put in his measuring-cup MORE YEAST—and blew his mixture up. And thus for bargain-hunting eyes was made a loaf of pompous size. 'Twas white as cotton, and (what shame!) it tasted very like the same. You see, the yeast which puffed it wide had burned up all the "good" inside.

However, don't feel sad, my friend. This story has a happy end. D. M. with methods tried and true bakes bread the old-time way for you. Fresh and firm and honey-sweet, it holds the living heart of wheat. Thus time turns back Once more—hooray!—we have the bread of Grandma's day.

Quick-Frozen Food Menus

By MARTHA LEE

WEEK-ENDS ARE often a sort of busman's holiday for mother. Everybody's specially hungry and everybody expects extra good meals Saturday night and Sunday. There's quite likely to be company. All this means extra work for mother.

But the chief cook can make the week-end a real holiday, and every Sunday Mother's Day, if she plans the menus around quick-frozen foods. They are all ready to cook and serve just as they come from their cartons. So there is no time-consuming work of cleaning and preparation.

They are delicious, too. Succulent garden vegetables, ripe, sweet fruit, and delicately flavored sea foods are subjected to sub-zero cold temperatures close to fields where they are produced to greatest perfection. All their flavor is sealed in by the quick-freezing process, until you are ready to cook or serve them.

They are thrifty treats, too. Packed at the height of their season, they are priced for budget menus. Here are recipes for delicious dishes that will bring credit to the hostess for her week-end menus.

CHICKEN EN CASSEROLE

1 quick-frozen fowl for fricassee, partially thawed
Salt, pepper flour
1-3 cup butter or other fat
½ cup sliced onions
2 cups top milk or light cream

Separate fowl into pieces for serving. Season with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Saute in butter. Place in greased casserole. Saute onions in drippings in pan until delicately browned; add cream and pour over chicken. Cover casserole tightly and bake in moderate oven (325 deg. F.) 2½ hours, or until chicken is tender. Makes six servings.

RED RASPBERRY SHORTCAKES

1 box (10 oz.) quick-frozen raspberries, thawed
½ cup sugar
4 tbsp. water
4 hot shortcake biscuits, split and buttered
1-3 cup cream, whipped

Mix raspberries with ½ cup sugar and 4 tablespoons water and crush slightly. Let stand one-half hour, stirring occasionally. Spread raspberries on lower halves of hot shortcake biscuits; top with upper halves and additional berries. Garnish with whipped cream. Makes four servings. Or spread raspberries between two large biscuits or cake layers and garnish with whipped cream.

PEACH MOUSSE

1 box quick-frozen sliced peaches, thawed
1-3 cup sugar
⅛ tsp. salt
2 drops almond extract
1 cup cream, whipped

Crush peaches until thoroughly mashed, or force through coarse sieve. Add sugar, salt and almond extract to peach pulp; fold into whipped cream. Turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator and let stand 2½ to 3 hours or until firm. Or turn into mold, cover with waxed paper, press cover tightly down over paper and pack in equal parts ice and salt; let stand 2½ to 3 hours. Makes ¾ quart mousse.

TWELVEMONTH STRAWBERRY TAPIOCA

1 box (1 lb.) quick-frozen sliced strawberries, thawed
1 cup strawberry juice and water
2 tbsp. quick-cooking tapioca
2 tbsp. sugar
Dash of salt

Drain berries and add water to juice to make 1 cup. Combine strawberry juice and water, quick-cooking tapioca, sugar and salt in saucepan and mix well. Bring mixture quickly to a full boil over direct heat, stirring constantly. Remove from fire. (Mixture will be thin. Do not overcook.) Add fruit. Cool, stirring occasionally—mixture thickens as it cools. Chill. Serve with plain or whipped cream. Makes 4 servings.

Slade's CELERY SALT
Delicious in soups and on cold meats.

Love and Marriage

She Wants Him to Elope

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

I'm 21 years old and have a good position in a nearby town, this being the first time I've ever been away from home. Soon after I came here, I became acquainted with a young married woman, who tells me she is very much dissatisfied with her husband.

I've been to her home several times and now she says she's in love with me and wants to get a divorce from her husband.

I've told her that she'd be making a mistake, but I'm always glad to see her. She wants me to go away with her when she can get a divorce. I have half a notion I'll say I'll go with her, but thought I'd better ask your advice.

ANXIOUS.

I sincerely hope you'll reconsider your decision of going away with this dissatisfied married woman. The world is full of just such restless creatures, looking for excitement and never contented with any position they are able to command.

You are only 21 years old and an elopement at this time would spoil your chances with the excellent organization with which you tell me you are connected. Please break off with this woman.

"1" 1ST choice WITH MY FAMILY, SAYS THRIFTY WOMAN

Junior League Players' Tour

The Junior League Players will resemble a band of professional theatrical troupers all next week when they make a number of one-day stands, presenting their spring play, "Ten Minutes By the Clock," at various hospitals and charitable organizations in Greater Boston.

Lucy Pope has been busy directing rehearsals and the behind-the-scenes crew has been putting in long hours planning sets, costumes and lighting.

Beatrice Lowell is being assisted in carpentering and painting by Gail Nelson, Harriet Brooks, Polly Morrill, Gloria Coolidge, Laura Robbins and Mrs. Thomas Jansen, Jr., who is chairman of the production.

Plying their needles to make the colorful costumes designed by Mrs. Frank Grebe are Mrs. Jansen, Mrs. John Dolan, Henrietta Sharon and Mrs. G. Lincoln Dow, Jr.

Scene shifters, who will be responsible for for transportin and setting up the scenes during the tour next week, include Harriet Brooks, Priscilla Crocker, Elise Cunningham, Nancy Tucker, Polly Morrill, Rose Loring, Betsy Inches, Rosamond Hall, Anne Gallagher, Patricia Spencer, Mrs. Edward L. Bond, Mrs. John MacDonald, and Mrs. Maurice L. Jenks, Jr. Betty Herman and Mrs. Thomas Curtis are in charge of properties.

Included in the list of hospitals and institutions to be visited are the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital in Wellesley, the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children, Home for Aged Women, Industrial School for Crippled Children and Deformed Children, Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton, New England Home for Little Wanderers, Perkins Institute for the Blind, Boston Home for Incurables, Pediatrics division of the Massachusetts General Hospital and Boston City Hospital, Norfolk House Center and the North Bennet Street Industrial School.

MERLE OBERON, GEORGE BRENT EXCEL ON MET'S SCREEN

Pat O'Brien Shares in Honors

By PEGGY DOYLE

Til We Meet Again, Warner's remake of the Kay Francis-William Powell costumer "One Way Passage," of eight years agone, still is a potent tear-jerker as Merle Oberon and George Brent play it. It is the feature attraction at the Met.

Miss Oberon's performance gives depth and sincerity to a characterization that is implausible in its conception. You are expected to believe that she is a well-bred young woman and yet on the sight of a stranger named Dan in the ship's bar the chase is on. The lovely if unfortunate Joan Ames, suffering from a heart ailment, is about to die, but in her smartest cruise clothes. In Hongkong she meets Dan (George Brent) in a bar. They like each other instantly. They see each other again quite by chance on a Honolulu-bound ship and become practically inseparable companions - except when Pat O'Brien interferes. Dan is Pat's prisoner, who has escaped from San Quentin, where he was awaiting hanging on a murder charge. Neither, of course knows the other's secret and when they do it is another secret for each to keep.

O'Brien, as the detective, is excellent, giving the performance an authority that the boys at the bureau might well applaud. Eric Blore as the "branch of the Bank of England," who is no equal for Frank McHugh's larcenous geniality, provides some nice comedy. Binnie Barnes, as the phony countess, looks grand and acts even better. Nor should Geraldine Fitzgerald's unstarred but gleaming portrayal of the sympathetic passenger be overlooked in the summing up.

The Met's second feature, "Tear Gas Squad," has for its stars Dennis Morgan, John Payne and Gloria Dickson.

Midnight Show At Old Howard

Feature of tonight's midnight show at the Old Howard, starting at 11:30, will be the "Speed and Sparkle" burlesque revue, co-starring Mary Lane and Edna Dee.

'Johnny Apollo' Brings Bevy of Stars to Keith Memorial

Power, Lamour Are Co-Stars In Thrill-Packed Drama

By PEGGY DOYLE

Keith Memorial's marquee this week is positively blazing with "come in and see me sometime" names—Tyrone Power, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Lloyd Nolan and Charley Grapewin. The first two are co-starred and the latter featured in the current "Johnny Apollo."

Possibly aided by his somewhat dubious Jesse James reincarnation, Power acquits himself excellently in the title role of the collegiate gangster. But we must admit Miss Lamour's sarong, tired as we were getting of it, was much more becoming than her "Nickels and Dimes" costume.

MOBSTER HERO

The two, he an ex-college caisman turned mobster to gain money with which to effect his father's release from prison and she boss Nolan's gun moll, meet in a tawdry night club that serves as a front for the gang's activities. Power's father, Edward Arnold, is a wealthy broker who has been indicted for embezzlement a plot that has been lifted from New York headlines. Attorney Lional Atwill is unable to prevent Arnold's conviction and the latter goes to the Big House.

NIGHT CLUB HEROINE

Bitter and disillusioned, the banker's son finally becomes Johnny Apollo, gangster, because the stigma attaching to his name loses him jobs and his father's friends avoid him. He soon becomes the gang's one-man brain trust. Almost before he realizes it, he finds himself in love with Miss Lamour, the song-and-dance sweetheart of Nolan.

Meanwhile, unaware of Apollo's new romantic attachment, Nolan agrees to aid the lad in "springing" his banker-father from jail. When the father discovers that Apollo and his son are one and the same he refuses to have anything to do with the prison-break. Before the final fadeout all is well, thanks to the fine-fibered "Lucky" Dubarry (lourjours Lamour to you) who tells all to the prison authorities.

"Curtain Call," second Keith feature, has a footlights background, as you may have guessed, and for stars, Barbara Read, Alan Mowbray, Helen Vinson, Donald MacBride and John Archer.

AIMEE SEMPLE MacPHERSON who will turn movie actress to make one film, according to Louella O. Parsons' accompanying Hollywood column.

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, May 10 — Several years ago I met Aimee Semple MacPherson at a Hollywood press club meeting and I must admit she charmed the femme writers with her sense of humor, her noodish style and her dynamic personality.

[illegible] interesting indeed to hear Aimee Semple MacPherson as her devoted followers call her as [illegible] to a movie career. I had the pleasure of meeting Aimee when she made "The Love Light" for Mary Pickford. Then she was a beautiful young woman who was [illegible] and she had a lovely voice. I am told that [illegible] to be a hot spell in Hollywood as [illegible] of the country.

A cable was sent to Leslie Howard [illegible] of Miss Lewis, late yesterday asking him if he will have England at this time to play the movie lead in "The Letter," Bette Davis' next picture. Leslie is doing some special work for the British government during war time and whether or not he can be spared is problematical.

Mike advised him to buy the Somerset Maugham book in England and read the story, and really there's a great part for Leslie as well as Bette, and I can't think of anyone who would be better. Bette and Leslie were in "Petrified Forest" together, which, by the way, was one of Warner's best money-makers.

Stars Coming For 'Our Town'

The world premiere of "Our Town," Sol Lesser's production of Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize play, which also had its world premiere here is scheduled for Thursday, May 23, at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Director Sam Wood, Producer Sol Lesser and many of the picture's stars, including Fay Bainter, Guy Kibbee and Beulah Bondi, will attend the opening.

The premiere ceremonies will be confined to the State Theater, where New Hampshire's Gov. Murphy will act as host for all the New England governors. Guests at the luncheon, to be held earlier in the day at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, will be Gov. Leverett Saltonstall and his staff, Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Oscar W. Haussermann, president of the Chamber of Commerce; George Hansen, president of the Retail Board of Trade, and numerous other civic and state officials as well as the visiting stars, director, producer and author.

"Our Town" is the story of life in Grovers Corners, N. H., just over the line from Massachusetts, at the present time. Martha Scott portrays Emily Webb and William Holden, George Gibbs, who have known and loved each other since childhood.

Loew's State Gifts For Mothers Sunday

In observance of Mother's Day, the first 100 mothers attending next Sunday's matinee performance of "Too Many Husbands" and "Dr. Kildare's Strange Case" at Loew's State Theater will be gifted with a box of candy.

Debonair

By Charles McGuirk

IF you remember vaudeville at all, you remember "Howard and Black." They were a song-and-dance team and both Dan Howard and Billy Black were comedians. They were headliners and they played the Palace about five times a season and whenever they did, they stood them in the aisles.

The Cast of Characters in "Debonair"

DAN HOWARD, a former legitimate actor, teams up with BILLY BLACK, a burlesque comedian, and they click in vaudeville. Later, Billy proves he has more than mere slapstick comedy in his make-up.

They came up the hard way. Dan Howard had been a legitimate actor. He had drifted into vaudeville by way of a playlet and he stayed in because of his dark, handsome patrician face and his tall slim body, a good baritone voice and the foundations of a grand manner. He also could dance. Actors who had known him on the legitimate stage used to explain, with their noses at exactly the right angle of scorn, that he had degenerated into vaudeville.

If he had, then Billy Black had risen to it from burlesque. He had been a comedian on the Wheel and a comedy juggler and a rough-and-tumble dancer. He had a high, squeaky voice and an air of perpetual surprise which fitted in with his small stature and he could read comedy lines with a fillip that sent them straight into the hearts of an audience for that kind of a laugh. He was built something like a small barrel and his features had been fastened on to his round head in a haphazard manner.

Billy was responsible for the team of Howard and Black and he was also responsible for their material, the smoothness of their act and their steady rise from the five-a-day to Big Time. He was the brains, the energy and the heart of the act. Dan Howard was the straight man and the front.

They met in a theatrical boardinghouse in Chicago. Dan had finished a 20-week booking there of "The Bell Ringer," a one-act skit which had started at the Six spot and had been shifted to Three because it wasn't so good.

Billy had been fired from, "Watson's Beef Trust," a hilarious burlesque unit which featured comedy one-in chorus girls. His discharge came as a result of a number of shadvances. His "straight man" was a drunk and he muffed his lines. A lady who weighed a hundred and eighty pounds learned that life without Billy wasn't worth living. With the rest of the troupe, he had taken a ten-dollar cut in his salary. As he explained it, he wasn't happy.

GOODBY BURLESQUE

What Billy wanted to do, he told Dan, was to get out of burlesque. There was nothing the matter with it as medium of expression, you understand, but when you hit a hundred a week, you had reached your peak and there was no place else to go. Vaudeville was the racket. Vaudeville paid real money to artists.

Billy was working during his lay-off. He had grabbed a small part in one of the "Sweedie" series which Wallace Beery was directing out at the Essanay lot on Argyle st. It was his first introduction to pictures and he wasn't impressed. But he got $25 dollars a day for very little work and while he sat around waiting to be shot, he could work on building the comedy act in which he hoped to appear some day in vaudeville.

Dan idly asked what his new act was and Billy told him it called for two men, a comedian, which was he, and a straight man. His dialogue, he admitted modestly, was the best he ever had heard or read. All he needed now was his straight man but he was going to be hard to find.

"You see," Billy explained, "my act calls for a straight man that's different. He can't be the ordinary feeder that says 'Who was that lady I seen you with last night?' He has to be refined and elegant and——"

"Debonair?" Dan asked.

"What's that mean?" Billy demanded. "It sounds like class."

"It is, sort of," Dan admitted. "It means genteel. Literally, in French it means 'with the good or the grand manner.' Elegant."

"That," Billy agreed enthusiastically, "is just what this gent I'm looking for has to have. He has to be debonair. And I know who he is."

"Who?" Dan inquired.

"You," Billy blurted. "Look, Mr. Howard. I know you wouldn't think of tying up with a slapstick fellow like me, but if you only would give it a try, I'll bet a month's salary that we'd click. It would be the contrast, see? Me the rough-and-ready, simple guy. You the gentleman, always trying to steer me right. Why, then I eat it up! Only, there's no use thinking about it. You wouldn't do it."

"Why wouldn't I do it?" Dan asked. "I have to eat and I don't care how I get the money with which to do it."

Billy was knocked dizzy, but when he recovered the team of Howard and Black was born.

The act was a success from the start. They tried it out and worked it up to smoothness in Gary, Ind. They showed it to the bookers at a Keister and Ball theater on the North Side and they were booked for 20 weeks on the Keith and Western vaudeville managers' (big) time. It was so good that it started in the Two spot and moved up to Four.

DAME FORTUNE SMILES

Billy was happy for a long time. He had everything he wanted in women. Not that they bothered him, at all. They didn't know he existed. But they hovered around Howard like flies around a honeypot. Not that Howard was a woman's man. He could take women or leave them alone and he preferred to leave them alone.

The problem had Billy down until he decided to find a wife for Dan. He lived for the act. Nothing else mattered, women or drink or gambling or any of the spicy vices that make life more interesting for the average man. The act was his heaven and, privately, Dan Howard was a piece of dressing that Billy had been lucky to get. He considered him with the same deep affection that he felt for the word "debonair." Now, there was a word. It meant everything that Billy had striven for all his life. He used in on all occasions. Everything that was swanky, class or extraordinary was "debonair." He even worked it into their billing. "Howard and Black, the Debonair Comedians."

The fly in Billy's ointment was Billy shopped around mentally from Boston to Oklahoma City and finally picked on Maggie Hannagan, a cute little dancer whose mother and father were hoofers to be Dan's wife. The acts met in Pittsburgh and Maggie proved herself a woman by falling for Danon sight. The rest was merely a matter of selling Maggie to Dan. He did it within the week. Dan and Maggie were married on that closing Saturday night.

It was a girl and she grabbed Billy's first finger without opening her eyes.

"It won't make any difference in the act, will it, Billy?" Dan asked, ignorant that he had been thrust into Maggie's arms. "You aren't angry, are you?"

"Who? Me?" squeaked Billy. "Why, I think Maggie is class. She's debonair. She'll keep the rest of the babies out of your hair."

When the inevitable happened and Maggie came through with a blessed event, Billy was as sore as a bear with a toothache until he got a look at the baby. It was a girl and she grabbed Billy's first finger without opening her eyes. From then on he was her slave. It was Billy who decided her name should be Marcia. It popped into his mind and it seemed to fit her.

"YOU'RE DEBONAIR"

Maggie died when Marcia was 5, and Billy became a mother. Dan wasn't much with kids. He was a self-contained, good-looking actor with a good front and a lot of ham in him. Babies annoyed him. Marcia sensed it and turned to Billy. He was "Uncle Billy" to her, and he taught her all his dancing steps and all the latest songs. When she was 13, he pronounced her a real trouper. "Kid," he told her, "you're the cat's whiskers. You're debonair."

The night that Dan Howard followed Maggie into eternity was a cold and rainy one. It was in Chicago, and it was 1929, and vaudeville was dangerously near dead. Dan had pneumonia, and Billy and Marcia were at his bedside in Mercy Hospital.

"I guess this is it," Dan said, "take care of Marcia, Billy," and he was gone.

"Look, Kid," Billy said to Marcia, "the act goes on, see? It's still 'Howard and Black, the Debonair Comedians.' You know the routine. And you're almost as good as your father was."

That may have been, but vaudeville was dead. The Palace Theater was a picture house and you couldn't get a booking except in night clubs. Billy took them there, waiting for vaudeville to come out of its slump. It never did, of course, but one night, Max Blenheim, a talent scout for Mammoth Pictures, saw Billy and Marcia do their routine at the Silver Slipper. He was entranced by the beauty and grace of the little blonde girl and he sent word back that he wanted to see them.

"I can give you a seven-year contract with options," he said, "because I think you got something. Maybe you haven't. But if you have, Hollywood will make you a queen. Keep your nose—I mean, watch your step and maybe you'll be a star. You'll get $75 a week."

"But what about Uncle Billy?" Marcia asked, "will he have a contract, too?"

"Well, no," Max told her; "the market for comedians is pretty quiet. We couldn't use Mr. Black."

"Then thank you," Marcia said, "but I wouldn't break up our act for worlds. It was nice of you, Mr. Blenheim, to offer me——"

"Look," Billy cut in, "you're grabbing this chance. I'm tired of trouping. I'm an old man now and I got a couple of bucks in my grouch bag. You and me'll go out to Hollywood and I'll take care of you and the house. When vaudeville comes back, I'll throw a new act together."

When Marcia signed the contract, Billy took her to the hotel they inhabited. When she had gone to her room, Billy slid out the side door of the lobby and made for a bar. After his fifth highball, he began to cry softly to himself. Before his befuddled mind trouped the past and all its glories. His name in lights. Dan Howard and even Maggie Hannagan. These two stood together and Billy began to talk.

"Listen, Dan," he whispered to the fuzzy figure that stared at him from the bar mirror, "I brought up the kid and she's tops. I got her so they want her in Hollywood. In two years, she'll be a star and then I'll build up a new act. Maggie, do you know what I think of Marcia? Well, I'll tell you. Marcia's debonair."

"Look, buddy," the bartender said to Billy, "better scram out of here. You've had enough and if you get drunker and start raising Cain, I'll get into trouble. So long, pal."

"So long," Billy mumbled. "And listen, you don't know it, but you're looking at half of an act that was tops in the old days. Howard and Black. Ever hear of them? They were debonair."

THE END.

AUSTEN LAKE

"I'd Rather Lick 'Em Than Buy 'Em"---Yawkey

THOMAS A. YAWKEY SAID "HOKUM" AND laughed his queer chu-chu-chu! T. A. Y. leaned back in Drawing Room A and twisted his face in a pussy cat grin and said "Bunk!" to the story that heirs of the Jake Ruppert beer and baseball millions had coaxed him to dump his Red Sox property and buy the New York Yankees.

AUSTEN LAKE

The curious little yarn had its setting on Yawkey's baronial shooting island in South Carolina, where Thomas likes to gather baseball celebrities and take them poking through his pine forests. So last winter when Ed Barrow, business brains of the Yankees, was a week-end gun-guest, Barrow was supposed to have said, in effect, "Now Tom, here is baseball's prize property blinking its pretty blue eyes. The Ruppert heirs have to liquidate to meet the Federal inheritance tax. The price is cheap at four million! You're a native New Yorker. Why not?"

There was more! For at the time Joseph Kennedy, ex-Harvard infielder, multiple millionaire and present ambassador to Britain, was vacationing at home and ready, so the whisper goes, to float a syndicate to buy the Yanks. Kennedy's daddy-in-law, "Honey" Fitzgerald, was named in the group. So Barrow supposedly suggested to Tom, "Make 'em a trade! They're Bostonians. Sell 'em the Sox and take the Yanks. Make everybody happy!"

Yawkey admits that Barrow mentioned something of the sort last winter and according to his tale they had been sitting around an evening log fire in the trophy room, joshing about trivia of one sort or another. So when Barrow suggested he throw up his Boston club for grabs and buy baseball's biggest bargain, Tom haw-hawed a little and said, well, maybe it would be smart if he bought the Yankees just to bust them up and make the league safe for his own pennant puppies.

"IT WAS A LOT OF CHIN MUSIC," said Tom. "I remember saying, 'I'd rather lick them than buy them.'" Yet Barrow back in New York, apparently thought seriously enough of the incident to relate it as a bona fide offer to a local newshawk who fishtailed downtown and put it into ink.

Eight years ago Yawkey might have been interested! He had a lusty flair of hereditary cash, most of his foster-father's sporting instinct, and a desire for a hobby. But Colonel Jake Ruppert was robust at the moment and wouldn't sell the Yankees for the entire Yawkey fortune, which has been variously estimated at thirty or forty millions in mines, lumber forests, factories and shipping.

So Tom bought the best available franchise—the Red Sox, and slapped down $1,200,000 and a similar sum to turn Bob Quinn's old brick crater into one of baseball's show places. Then he shopped around for a flock of established stars and shovelled out another $1,500,000, plus half a million for a few breed farms and a lot of unripe kids—or about $4,000,000 in all.

By coincidence Four Million Is the exact figure the Yankee heirs are said to be asking Jim Farley's combine to pay, although in better

Harris Faces Yanks As Sox Invade N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 10—"Oscar Vitt has been running off at the mouth that the Red Sox is a lucky ball club," declared Manager Joe Cronin. "We weren't lucky when we took 9 out of 11 games from the Western clubs at home. And you can't convince me that we are lucky to take on the Yankees after they've dropped six in a row.

"During our recent stay at home, we overpowered our opponents. True, our pitching was mediocre at times but Jack Wilson and Herbie Hash did some great relief work. But our hurling wasn't as bad as Cleveland's for we used only four pitchers in the last two games while Vitt had ao call upon no less than nine. We connected with hits in the clutches, and now I know that Vitt can't take it.

LEADS WITH HARRIS

"The Yankees, as I figure them, are just about ready to ruin some club. They've been knocked around by clubs which do not rate being in the same league with them. All that I'm hoping for is that they don't start to click until after our three game series with them.

"I'm going to start Mickie Harris, a rookie left-hander from Queens Village, over on Long Island. He started his major league career with wins over the Nats and Athletics but he hadn't recovered from the flu and a sprained ankle when the Indians flattened him last Sunday at home."

Spud Chandler wil be on the hilltop for the Yankees today, and if he's right, the Red Sox may have some trouble.

The Tigers carried the Red Sox 10 innings yesterday before yielding 6 to 5. They got to Denny Galehouse for a home run by Earl Averill which was sanwiched between doubles by Dick Bartell and Hank Greenberg for two runs in the first inning. But for the next four innings the Tigers were helpless.

LOSE SAFE LEAD

And, in the meantime, the Red Sox pushed over a run in the fourth, when Jim Tabor scored Manager Joe Cronin, who had doubled, with a single to center field. Then, in the next round, the Sox took over what looked like a safe lead, four runs. Due to a single by Life Begins at White Label . . .

Somewhere around town you're going to have a drink of White Label Malt Beer—then life is going to be different for you after that, because White Label is brewed differently—of choice imported Hops, and fancy Malt—but no other grain! That costs us more but you pay only American prices for import-flavor beer.

There's one fair way to judge — Taste and Compare!

This beer is made solely from hops and barley-malt and no other grain and is therefore a "malt" beer. This is the way fine imported beers are brewed; it is the distinction which, in popular opinion, sets Trommer's apart as a more palatable and thoroughly satisfying brew.

BEES HEAD HOME AFTER FINE TRIP

EN ROUTE TO BOSTON, May 10—Casey Stengel's Bees, who left town a few weeks ago bedraggled and beleaguered and something of a laughing stock for the baseball sharps, come rolling back into Boston today something altogether different.

What was to have been a tour of disaster saw the Bees suddenly getting onto themselves and compiling a streak of four straight, three in a row from the Pirates and one over the champion Reds, in the course of which they dynamited the Reds' prize pitcher, Paul Derringer.

FETTE, TOBIN READY

Now those who sat back chuckling are up and cheering, for the Bees are in sixth place, within easy reaching distance of third. Furthermore two of their pitching reliables, Jim Tobin and Lou Fette, are on the point of seeing service for the first time this campaign.

In fact Fette was working out well in Cincinnati before the first road trip of the season ended there yesterday, and Pilot Stengel, who employed some mysterious power to wake up his athletes, intends to start Fette tomorrow.

The Bees spend an off-day today riding in triumphantly from Cincinnati. They encounter the Giants in National League Field tomorrow in the first of a three-game series. After the Terrymen will come the Cubs, Pirates, Reds and Cards.

Not even the Reds of this group hold any terror for the Bees who are starting to get pitching and who have a group of the league's heaviest hitters in Warstler, Scarsella, Miller, Ross and Rowell al. in the .300 class.

The Bees had the hard luck to run into Bucky Walters of the Reds in their road farewell, else they might have made it five in a row. As it was, Walters, leading N. L. pitcher a year ago, hurled his usual invincible baseball to make it five straight for himself.

ONLY 5 HITS

The Bees had to be content with five blows today and the first of these posted their only run. That was a homer into the distant right field bleachers by Max West with two out in the fourth inning. Previous to this long blow, Walters had retired 11 batters in succession.

After West's homer, just one Bee reached third and one other got to second. Bucky's mound opponent, Joe Sullivan, forced Eddie Miller, who had opened the sixth with a walk, then ran to second when Hassett clicked a two-out single to center.

Les Scarsella tripled to right center with two out in the seventh and Goodman then cut off a run with a fine catch out of a blinding sun of Phil Masi's liner.

Sullivan, only southpaw to start a game against the champion Reds this year, walked Eddie Joost twice and his second pass spelled trouble. The first walk to Joost, in the third, was followed by two safe bunts from the bats of Walters and Werber to fill the bags with none out but no Red scored. Not so in the fifth when Joost again led off with a walk. Walters this time drove a liner through a strong north wind to the left field fence where it slid off Chet Ross' glove for a double on which Joost ran home to make the score 1-1. Frank McCormick untied it at the start of Cincy's sixth with a homer.

The game stood 2-1 until the last of the eighth when George Barnicle succeeded Sullivan and was greeted with a single to left from Harry Craft's bat. Barnicle then fanned Mike McCormick but walked Joost and had Walters three balls and no strikes when Dick Coffman relieved him and walked Walters.

Bill Werber's fly to Hassett brought in Craft while Lonnie Frey singled to center, scoring Joost.

SOX HURLER cut down at third base. Herb Hash, ace relief pitcher, sliding into third base, was tagged out by "Pinky" Higgins, Detroit, in ninth. Hash, who had previously doubled, was out advancing after Lou Finney's attempted sacrifice was fielded to third to catch Herb.

Your answer to this puzzle, together with your solutions to the five other Rebus Puzzles appearing from Mon., May 6, to Sat., May 11, inclusive, should be brought or mailed to the Rebus Editor, Boston Record-American, P. O. Box 2058, before Midnight, Sat., May 18, together with 10c in coin. In return for remittances, contestants will receive a special set of puzzles at the close of the contest.

THE RULES

1—The Boston Record-American Rebus Game is open to all bona fide residents of the New England States, except employees of the Boston Record, the Boston American and the Sunday Advertiser, members of their families, any person acting as a proxy for another, and any person who has won $500 or more in any newspaper contest.

2—Beginning Monday, Feb. 12, 1940, a Rebus puzzle will be published each weekday in the Boston Record and the Boston American. Contestants may obtain their puzzles from either publication. The six puzzles published during each week will constitute a series. There will be fifteen weekly series. Answers for each week's series of puzzles should be brought or mailed to the Contest Editor, c/o the Boston Record-American Rebus Game. Answers for each week's series should be submitted within the week after that series appears in the Boston Record and the Boston American.

3—One hundred (100) prizes will be awarded by the Boston Record-American in accordance with the published schedule of prizes to those 100 contestants who, by their solutions, achieve the 100 highest scores. No contestant may win more than one prize. Neatness does not count. Do not decorate your answers.

4—In case two or more contestants are tied for a certain prize, just what particular prize each contestant may be entitled to will be determined by submitting to each tied contestant a set of tie-breaking puzzles and if necessary a second, third or fourth set of tie-breaking puzzles. Prizes will be awarded on the basis of the highest scores achieved by contestants, in accordance with the instructions and scoring regulations governing the solution of such tie-breaking puzzles. At the discretion of the Boston Record and the Boston American, tied contestants may be required to work the tie-breaking puzzles without assistance, in the offices of the Boston Record or the Boston American. In case of final ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

5—In order to qualify for a prize, contestants are required to accompany each weekly series of answers with a remittance of 10c in coin. An individual file will be set up for each qualified contestant and each weekly set of answers duly filed therein. After the contest closes, each individual file will be duly judged.

To those contestants who complete the 15 weekly series of puzzles and who in all other ways conform to the rules of the contest, the Boston Record-American will present a special series of fifteen original Rebus puzzles created by Harold Hart, former-ly puzzle expert.

6—Any person, by entering this contest, agrees to abide by and accept as final the decision of the Boston Record and the Boston American on all matters affecting this contest, including among others the qualification of contestants, their disqualification at any time for any cause deemed necessary, the application of the rules, the judging of answers, the scoring of solutions, and the interpretation of such instructions (governing individual puzzles) as may be announced by the contest officials. By entering this contest participants agree that their answers become the property of the Boston Record and the Boston American and will not be returned.

7—Entries that are not signed by name will not be considered eligible for prizes; nor will any claims to the ownership of such entries be recognized. Entries which are illegible will not be considered. The Boston Record and the Boston American will not be responsible for entries or communications lost or unduly delayed either from the contestant to the Boston Record-American Contest Editor or from the Boston Record-American Contest Editor to the contestant.

By JACK CONWAY

EVEN WHILE THE Red Sox were digging in at the head of the American League pennant race, Boston fans found time to give attention to the battling Bees who have been playing sensational ball for the past week. One of the most pleasing things about the surge of the men of Casey has been the batting of the club. The Bees have been the talk of the National League in the matter of hitting.

There was a time when Casey Stengel called for some kind of a celebration if the Bees secured more than six hits in a game. Nowadays the Bees bat like the Yankees did before they were stricken with their case of southpawitis.

The Bees got off to a wretched start in this season's flag fight. For a time it looked as if the club was doomed for a dismal season. Then the pitchers showed better form, and the batters released an amazing number of hits. The club then started its forward surge, and Casey Stengel says the good work will be continued in the home stay that starts tomorrow.

Eddie Miller has regained his former speed, and has been one of the most reliable batters on the club. Miller played brilliant ball up to time he suffered an injury to one of his legs last Summer. During the spring practice at Bradenton, Fla., Eddie was very cautious. It was feared that Miller's injured leg had not recovered completely and that he would not have a good season.

Once the league season got under way Miller took more chances in the field, while his batting picked up. Miller should prove the top shortstop of the National League this season.

Shorter Playing Field Will Help Batters

THE SHORTER playing field at National League Park will be a distinct advantage to the Bees now that the club is hitting. Bob Quinn has come to the conclusion that Boston fans want free hitting games which is why he finally consented to move the outfield walls nearer home plate.

Quinn found that even when the Red Sox lost the fans were satisfied as they left Fenway Park. They would talk on such occasions of long hits made by Jimmy Foxx or Ted Williams.

Quinn and Stengel have been putting a premium on youth. They are beginning to get results. Bob and Casey both figure that the Bees are two years away from being a pennant contender, but as the club keeps getting better it will knock off many a team that has high hopes of winning a pennant.

The big improvement in the Bees is due to the pickup in their farm system. The club now has a strong minor league chain, and it is able to develop the needed talent.

Tom Yawkey, like Bob Quinn, found out that it is impossible to purchase needed star players, and that the only way to be assured of the players needed for the future is by developing youngsters through a series of minor league clubs.

Red Sox Test Yankees in New York

THE RED SOX, following their two straight victories over the Detroit Tigers, left for New York where they open a three-game series with the Yankees today. The Yankees have been used roughly by rival American League clubs this year. An almost steady diet of southpaws has almost ruined the world's champions. When the Yankees were dizzy from facing southpaws, Bob Feller, a right hander, was shot against them, and his fast ball enabled him to turn back Joe McCarthy's club.

Despite the poor showing of the world's champions so far this season, the team is jammed with dynamite which is liable to explode any day. The explosion may take place as the Yankees face the Red Sox. The Yankees consider the Sox and Indians their most serious pennant rivals, and they will try to snap out of their slump at the expense of Joe Cronin's outfit.

An injury to Joe DiMaggio, which kept the Coast sensation out of the early season lineup, was one of the chief causes of the slump of the Yankees. DiMaggio was put back into the game before his injured leg had completely recovered in a desperate effort to get the Yankees winning again. So far DiMaggio has been unsuccessful.

Anybody who believes that the Yankees will continue playing as poorly as they have been so far this season is due for a severe jolt. I do not believe the Red Sox are laboring under any such delusion. They realize better than any club in the league the potential power that is possessed by the champions.

Until this year the Sox have been the only American League club with courage enough to fight it out with the Yankees. Last Summer Joe Cronin led his men to five straight victories over the Yankees in New York. The Sox pitchers later cracked, and the Yankees went on to win the pennant and the world's championship.

SOX SEND HARRIS TO HILL

Lou Finney, a Doc Cramer two-bagger and a walk to Teddy Williams, the Red Sox had the bases loaded before a man had been retired.

It was a perfect setting for Jimmy Foxx and Double X didn't pass up his opportunity to crash the headlines. He tied into one of Freddie Hutchinson's best serves and rifled a drive between Earl Averill and Bruce Campbell to the wall in right center for three bases and as many runs. Jimmy chalked up the fourth run of that stanza, after Joe Cronin had flied to Averill.

CRAMER SAVES SITUATION

A two-base error by Lou Finney on Charlie Gehringer's hoist into the sun paved the way for the Tigers to score their third run in the sixth, for after that miscue, Averill Fox and York hit safely in rapid succession and but for a great throw by Doc Cramer, which cut down Averill, who tried to go from first to third on Fox's hit, there's no telling just how many runs the Tigers would have tallied in that round.

After displaying signs of weakening in the previous inning, Galehouse was greeted with singles by Birdie Tebbetts and Pinch Hitter Nelson in the seventh and retired.

Herbie Hash, who had complained before the game that he had a stiff shoulder, received the nod from Mgr. Joe Cronin and strolled up from the bull pen. It was a tough spot for any pitcher to step into, particularly a sugar bush. But Hash was equal to the task.

With men on first and second and nobody down, Dick Bartell, who was the first Tiger to face Hash, was signalled to sacrifice. He laid down a perfect bunt and but for Hash's alertness, when the ball took a bad hop, would have come up with a hit. But Hash grabbed the ball and nailed the former National Leaguer at first.

HASH COMES THROUGH

Campbell's best effort was a two-hopper back at Hash who threw to Gene Desautels and Tebbetts was trapped between third and home. Desautels ran the Nashua boy back to third and then tossed to Jim Tabor but Birdie slid in and was safe. However, Nelson was also standing on the bag so Tabor lugged him out and got one man. (And, despite comments by any other experts, there was no chance of Tabor making a double play.)

Charlie Gehringer walked Hash for a pass and then Earl Averill singled to center driving in two runs, which tied the score.

In all probability, Doc Cramer saved the game in the Tigers' half of the ninth by making a sensational catch off Bruce Campbell, one of the most sensational clutches ever seen at Fenway Park.

And then came the last of the 10th, with the clubs still tied up 5-5. After Higgins had retired Jimmy Foxx, Joe Cronin shot a drive to left center for two bases. With first base open, Benton walked Doerr and got in a hot and passed Tabor, filling the sacks.

Jimmy Peirock was sent up to bat for Gene Desautels and came through with a game-winning single to center field, scoring Joe Cronin to give the Red Sox a 6-5 victory.

times and without Federal pressure the property would bring nearer $8,000,000, including a five-million dollar stadium, a million in player stocks and ten or more minor league clubs.

YAWKEY IS TOUCHY ON THE SUBJECT OF the money he has spent in baseball. Nothing is more certain to raise irritated lumps on his brow than the suggestion that he tried to overpower the league with his bankroll. He dislikes to hear his team called the "Gilt Sox."

So, he said today that he did not regret a penny of his four million and it wouldn't have been half the fun had he bought an established champion that was batting the liver and lights out of the rest of the league. "We've made mistakes," he said, "but who in the baseball business hasn't? If the Red Sox had been a steamroller team like the Yankees of the last four years when I bought them . . . well, I wouldn't have bought them for several reasons. Bob Quinn wouldn't have sold and I wouldn't have enjoyed the fun of fitting a pennant picture together. It's been a game with me, not a business in the sense that I expect to make money."

Unlike Ruppert, who also ran his Yankees as a hobby and plowed back every dollar he made, Yawkey lives on a farm with his parents and has a small boy fondness for haunting the locker rooms or dropping his coin on the pipe rails and keeping up a crossfire of badinage with star athletes during practice. Ruppert was remote from his team, sitting like a little china mantelpiece Mandarin in the private box and smiling his fixed Oriental smile. But, where Yawkey, although he is own most rabid fan, has been curiously patient with failure, Ruppert fussed and fumed when his managers didn't deliver immediate pennants. He expected perfection!

SO, TODAY, INSTEAD OF BEING THE YANKEE owner and watching his last place club struggle with the league leading Red Sox, Yawkey is contentedly squatting on the stadium slopes and squirming the seat out of his pants. His residence is in one of Fifth avenue's sky towers, but his heart lives at 24 Jersey St., Boston. "I'd rather lick 'em than buy 'em," he says of the Yanks, claiming that the only thing he likes better than beating them a ball game is to beat them a whole series of ball games.

Mass. Race Board Hears Agents' Plea

By TOM SHEHAN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., May 10—Fully aware that trouble is brewing over its ban against jockeys' agents, the Massachusetts Racing Commission plans to make a trip here tomorrow morning to meet with the riders and discuss the situation.

Chairman Charley Connors, accompanied by his associates, Harold Allen and Elmer Nelson, plans to meet with the riders at 10:30 a. m. tomorrow, according to our informant here.

UNITED OPPOSITION

The visit of the racing commission is the result of the visit of Jockeys Berger, Roach and Taylor to the racing commission offices at 9 Beacon st., Wednesday morning. At that time the riders found the commissioners out, but left their names and politely requested a hearing on the matter at whatever time it would suit the convenience of the officials.

Horsemen, agents and riders are up in arms over the ban against the agents. They are co-operating in an effort to politely show the Bay State commission the error of trying to enforce their ban.

AGENTS ESSENTIAL

Randolph Scully, who handles the riding engagements of Glen Smith and Harry Krovitz, has been designated as the spokesman for the agents. Scully, who has been a jockey's agent for the last 20 years, points out, "Do they want to deprive us of a chance of making a living just because of the mistakes of a lot of Johnny-Come-Latelies.

"I agree that there are a lot of agents who should be eliminated, but there are ways of doing that without working a hardship on the jockeys and the agents who belong in the game.

"I maintain an agent is essential to advertise a jock's wares. I've ridden horses, rubbed horses, trained horses and owned horses, but the last 20 years I've been agent. What do they want me to do? Quit the only game I know?

"I put Sonny Workman on his first winner. I did the same with Al Robertson. There's a boy right over there, Sammy Steele, I put him on his first winner and inside of three months his contract was sold for $15,000.

"I brought out Fred Armstrong and he was sold for $10,999. I brought out Tony Pascuma.

FAILED IN CUBA

"In fact, I handled Pascuma's riding engagements down there all the time there was supposed to be a ban against jockey's agents. Willie Doyle, and Willie was above reproach as far as I ever knew, was the agent appointed for the track when they tried to enforce the ban in New Orleans, but Willie didn't put Tony on a mount that winter and he won all the stakes but one that winter—1926.

"They tried it in Cuba. Sep Newton, you must remember Sep from Rockingham Park—he worked for Jim Monroe, had charge of the mounts there, but it didn't work any better there than it did in New Orleans.

"For the simple reason that a good jock's agent won't let his boy ride every mount. For instance, I won't let any of my boys ride either a bleeder or a horse that has been nerved.

WON'T RIDE SOME HORSES

"If the booking of mounts is handled through the office, as they say they're going to handle mounts at Suffolk Downs, those boys are bound to put on a lot of horses they won't ride. And you can't blame them. A boy like W. L. Taylor has too much at stake to take a chance riding a bad horse.

"There's a boy over there—Jimmy Donaldson—I had him the same time I had Workman and he was winning as many races as Workman. And he won as many races as Workman right up until the time he got hurt.

"He's got a leg smashed up from riding. He can't do any heavy work. Why that leg is so bad that when he was riding in a train from Florida he broke it again when the train lurched. What's he going to do but be a jock's agent or work around a race track? He doesn't know anything else.

STEWARDS PASS ON AGENTS

"They say a good many of the agents are touts, but they're not the boys who came around the game as jockeys or exercise boys. They have too much at stake.

"The agents who give them trouble are the ones who have come around the last few years. The only reason they want to be an agent at all is to get a badge. They don't want to earn a living in the game, they just want the hustling privileges.

"If they want to eliminate those kind of agents, why don't they let the stewards pass on the agents just as they do the trainers? I don't think that they want to prevent us from making a living.

DANGER OF LARCENY

"As for the idea of having one agent handle the engagements of the riders, there is too much chance for larceny in that kind of a job to give it to one man.

"Even if he were the most honest man in the world, when a man puts in for a jock a couple of times and doesn't get him, he immediately thinks that the man is holding the boy for somebody else.

"I could go on forever digging up angles for you, but I think that you get the idea. We don't want any trouble, but you can't blame us for fighting against losing an opportunity to earn our livings."

FRISCH CONFIDENT PIRATES WILL CLICK

PITTSBURGH, May 10 (AP)—Gloomy from nine straight defeats, topped off by a 17-6 lacing at the hands of the Giants, Manager Frankie Frisch led the Pittsburgh Pirates to Chicago today expressing conviction they will not remain anchored in the National League cellar.

"We've got plenty of time to make up for those defeats," said the fiery old Fordham flash, hoping the series with the Cubs may chage his luck. "But in the meantime I may hire myself a bodyguard. I'm afraid I'm liable to do something desperate."

Frisch believes he has accomplished some things since he took over command of the buccaneers.

"I've learned who can play ball and who can't," he said. "We've got good men on the club and one of these days you will wonder how we ever lost nine straight.

"Remember, the team dropped eight straight last year after winning the opening game."

One source of trouble has been the pitching. In only three of 15 games has a starting pitcher finished. The parade to and from the box has become so rapid the hurlers are being called "minute men" by disgruntled fans.

Aiming for the limit of 25 players he must reach by May 15, Frisch yesterday sent to the minors one of the most lavish investments in the club's history.

They were Pitcher Johnny Gee and Catcher Ray Mueller, who went to Syracuse and Rochester of the International League, respectively, subject to recall. They cost the Pirates in the neighborhood of $150,000 in cash and players.

With the squad now numbering 27, two more must be dropped.

Reds Died in Series, But Wake Is for Yanks

CINCINNATI, O., May 10 (AP)—It was a bright Indian Summer day when the experts put their heads together and solemnly agreed "the Reds'll never recover from this."

The New York Yankees, unconquerable and serene, had just battered Cincinnati's bal club into the dust.

But on this spring day six months later the tables are turned. Brooklyn may be at the top, but the Reds are still playing championship ball, just as if there'd never been a World Series.

The Yankees are, for the moment at least, a second hand soap bubble.

Some say it's luck that's keeping the Reds going but the figures call it pitching and fielding.

Bucky Walters' five-hit, 4-to-1 victory over the Boston Bees yesterday was the fifth game in which a Red pitcher almost had a shutout.

Among Bucky's four other decisions are a 3-0 shutout handed Pittsburgh and a 6-1 beating for St. Louis.

In six games the opposition got but two runs apiece. The Dodgers scored only three the day Tex Carleton threw his no hitter at the reds. The highest score against the Reds was the Bees' 10-4 victory Wednesday.

In 11 of the Reds' 16 games the starting pitchers have finished. The opposition, with 44 runs, has averaged 2.75 runs a game, and with 110 hits, 6.875 a day.

As for fielding, yesterday's was the Reds' eighth straight errorless game, an dthey have made only seven bobbles all season.

The Reds died of the effects of the World Series, but the wake is for the Yankees.

Streaking?

4 Straight For Bisons

The Buffalo Bisons took a long time getting started, but they're travelin, under full steam now, according to the Associated Press.

After dropping nine of their first 11 games, the Bisons came back to take three straight from Syracuse and then knocked over the league-leading Jersey City Giants, 10-7, yesterday to make it four in a row. The victory was the first for Buffalo in five starts against the Little Giants and gave them a firmer hold on sixth place in the International League.

CARNEGIE SETS PACE

Ollie Carnegie paced the Herd's 12-hit attack on four Jersey hurlers, with a double and two singles, driving in three runs. The veteran Bison was hitting for only .204 until yesterday and his return to form gave the Buffalo fans a brighter outlook. Floyd Stromme started in the box for the winners, but was lifted in the fifth in favor of Jim Trexler, who received credit for the victory.

The Rochester Red Wings jumped into a tie for second place with Baltimore by beating Newark, 8-3; while the Orioles were losing, 5-4, to the Montreal Royals.

Eleven men went to bat for the Wings in the big fifth inning when they pushed over six runs, after trailing 4-2, to win their sixth game in their last seven starts. Frank Crespi was the batting hero for Rochester, with three hits in four times at bat. Hershel Lyons got credit for his second triumph of the season, thanks to the expert relief hurling of Mike Ryba, who took over in the ninth to squash a late Bear rally.

WICKER TO RESCUE

Kemp Wicker played a similar role to save the game for the Montreal Royals, after Bill Crouch allowed three straight hits to fill the bases with Orioles. Ben Sankey belted a pinch-hit double off Wicker to clear the bags, but Kemp retired the next two men to end the game. Gene Hasson homered for Montreal with one on in the sixth.

A ninth inning rally gave the Syracuse Chiefs a 6 to 5 victory over the Toronto Leafs, putting them in seventh place and dropping the Leafs into the cellar. At the end of seven innings Toronto was leading 1 to 0, but the Chiefs went on a rampage in their half of the eighth to score four runs, driving Jim Walkup, Toronto starter, from the mound. The Leafs came back for four runs in the last half of the inning, but singles by Warren, Hinckle and Harig and an infield out in the first half of the ninth sent the tying and winning runs across for Syracuse.

HOME FANS TOUGHER ON YANKEES

Dykes Lone Rider of Unemployment Insurance Keltner

Sounds strange, but the Yanks are getting more boos at home than they get on the road according to the Associated Press . . . They've been looking like a bunch of bums . . . They've been used to the fat of the land so long, they just can't take it when it comes hard.

If the Jints are any worse when they come home, the semi-pro Bushwicks will out-draw them . . . Manager Oscar Vitt says the only gazabo in the American League who is riding Ken Keltner (he's the poor guy who asked for unemployment insurance) is Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox . . . Feller not only throws as hard as ever, but he's heaps smarter and tells interviewers the big reason is Rollie Hemsley, the ex-playboy . . . At least 10 loyal Dodger rooters, led by a brass band, turned out at Floyd Bennett Field last night to welcome the club home from the West.

TODAY'S TRUE STORY

A Kingston, N. Y., fan who has been feeling low since the Yanks began losing, went to a M. D. for an examination . . . "I can't think of anything that's wrong with me, Doc, except the Yanks ain't winning," he said . . . The sawbones went all over him . . . "My friend," he said, "all you have is a very bad case of Yankee Doodle."

BELIEVE-IT-OR-NOT

Here's a fantastic Derby story, but it comes from a source that never has been wrong . . . Two of the jocks who rode in the Derby swear Bimelech (through his rider, Freddie Smith) was kidded out of winning . . . All day the other jocks rode Freddie unmercifully . . . They began in the jockey room about noon and kept it up—at full speed—until the band began to play "My Old Kentucky Home" . . . Even with the horses at the post they didn't let up . . . They say Freddie, riding his first Derby mount, wilted under the hard and fast ribbing . . . He was pale and jittery as the horses lined up for the start . . . When Smith hopped into the saddle the other jocks knew they had him . . . the two who told the story think Smith's riding mates literally rode Freddie and Bimelech out of the big race.

Joe McCarthy says with pride:

"We'll take our losing slump in stride."

* * *

Fifteen southpaws now have faced the Yanks in 18 games and you all know where our boys are roosting . . . down at Clemson College a track man has to score 11 points before he gets his monogrammed jersey . . . Banks McFadden (the All-America footballer) has scored 124¼ points in six meets and they're giving him—you're right—a monogrammed bath robe . . . George Stirnweiss, the U. of North Carolina halfback star, has promised to work out with the Durham (Piedmont League) Club after the college season, which means he probably has decided to sign with Cincinnati.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Wilbur Wood, N. Y. Sun: "It would be a good idea to place in a prominent spot in the baseball Hall of Fame a copy of the big league standings on the morning of May 9, 1940 . . . it seems fitting that there should be preserved for posterity a lasting record of a situation unparalleled in modern baseball—the Yanks in last place and the Dodgers in first place."

Diamond Gems

The batter steps to the plate . . . the pitcher winds up, kicks his leg into the air, and the high hard one streaks toward the crouching catcher . . . Crack! . . . the ball disappears over the right field fence . . . Batter No. 2 . . . Crack! . . . another homer . . . Batter No. 3 . . . again the sharp crack as the ball arches into the left field bleachers . . . three homers in succession! . . . remarkable distance hitting . . . it's happened five times in the majors since 1900 . . . Ambers Faces K. O. Clouter Tonight

NEW YORK, May 10 (AP)—Ever since Lou Ambers won the world lightweight championship the first time back in 1936, he has had the doubtful pleasure of tangling with punching specialists rather than less-dangerous skilled boxers every time the chips were down.

He puts his crown on the line again this evening in Madison Square Garden against Knockout-Outer-Texas Lew Jenkins, a swatter from Sweetwater, who has disposed of his last three opponents in a total of five rounds.

Another Wagner?

Vitt Lauds Boudreau

NEW YORK, May 10 (INS)—Oscar Vitt, who is Mr. Geronimo to his Cleveland Indian braves, today acclaimed Rookie Louis Boudreau as the greatest shortstop in major league baseball.

"Boudreau is the best there is at shortstop," burbled Manager Oscar. "The kid is a marvelous fielder, he can hit and he has plenty of pepper out there. I wouldn't trade him for any other shortstop, not even Frank Crosetti of the Yankees and Joe Cronin of the Red Sox.

SWEET COMBINATION

"And Ray Mack, the youngster we have at second, will do, too. They make a sweet combination and there's no question in my mind that they're there to stay. Mack, a big boy over 200 pounds, gets about fast despite his weight. He's not the equal of Boudreau but he does a fine job holding up his side of the infield and working with Lou."

That Boudreau and Mack work together harmoniously should occasion no surprise at all, since they were running mates in the infield of Buffalo of the International League last season. Both Boudreau and Mack have had but a season and a half in pro baseball and both were athletic brilliants in college. Lou, a Harvey, Ill., export, is 23, while Ray, a Cleveland product, is nearing 24.

What was Oscar's impression of the horsehide mobs with which the tribe had bandied blows?

BROWNS MOST IMPROVED

"The Yankees haven't done very well," laughed Oscar happily. "But I doubt whether that means much. If they lost another 40 in a row—and I hope they do—they'd still be a dangerous club."

We inquired what club the Indian chief considered to be the most improved in the league.

"The St. Louis Browns," snapped Oscar. "Nobody is going to barge into the Browns when they need some victories and expect to walk off with an easy three straight. The Browns aren't the same soft touch anymore. They fight hard for every ball game."

And where did he expect the Tribe to land?

"I don't know," grinned Oscar. "We have a better team than last year and we'll be trying for every game. That's as far as it's safe to go."

STRIPERS'LL BE HERE ANY DAY NOW, OPINES WEWEANTIC CAPTAIN

By DARK MONTREAL

Today's story opens with a negative report, excusable because of so many inquiries. No, the striped bass haven't started running yet.

Verbatim conversation with Captain John Allen, the striped bass general on the Weweantic at Marion:

"Hello, John, how've you been?"

"Hello, youngster, WHERE'VE you been?"

"I've been waiting to hear from you that the fish are in."

"Nary a fish yet."

"When do you look for 'em, John?"

"You know as well as I do. I've been shunting parties away from here for two weeks now 'Course they should be in. But it has been too cold. If this good weather keeps up and we get one or two days of a southerly wind, the stripers should be right along."

"How about the tautog? Any sign yet?"

"They're late, too. The first one was caught last Friday. I fished Gammons ledge yesterday and also the flats and didn't get one."

So there you are, boys and girls. The honor of taking the first striper from the Weweantic this year may still be yours. Captain John, being a pretty canny sort of an individual, says, "any day now," and I, being less canny, will go a little farther out on the limb and predict the first stripers in the Weweantic before next Tuesday. With tautog fishing pretty good this week-end at all the Buzzards Bay hotspots. Don't sue me if I'm wrong.

SHORT CASTS

The down-east exodus of Bostonians for the early Maine and New Brunswick salmon fishing is well under way. Bill Sheehan of Eastern Gas, is with a group on the Miramichi, as is A. Y. Atwill of Boston Ediphone, with a party of 10; Dr. Harry C. Lanergan of Newton is on an angling tour in Maine with several other doctors . . . Big Squam Lake at Holderness, N. H., drew several Bay Staters, who in turn drew good scores on landlocked salmon and lake trout. Best fish was a 7¼-pound laker, included with three salmon, the top fish weighing six pounds, creeled by Harry Alexander of Boston and James Hobart of Arlington. A. I. Merigold of Boston took a 3½-pound salmon at Pleasant lake.

Squiteague (a name I always prefer to the misnomer "weakfish") may be expected along the Buzzards Bay area with the striper run. They are already being taken at Fire Island Inlet . . . The flounder fishing has started everywhere and some fairly decent fish are being caught . . . Three friends of Albert E. Vagt, 77, past president of a fishing club at Buffalo, N. Y., carried out his last request by scattering his ashes on the Niagara river and reciting this epitaph: "Poor little fish, you won't have to be afraid of me any more."

OUT OF THE CREEL

E. Leffrey, Groton: Partridge Lake at Littleton, N. H., is providing some fine brook trout fishing, more than 200 weighing from a pound to 3½ pounds have been taken.

* * *

L. M. Taylor, Quincy: Your partner is right. There are plenty of salmon there. Four salmon, estimated to weigh between 12 and 15 pounds, were seen jumping the falls from Winnepesaukie river into Lake Opeechee. That's about a 10-foot leap.

Satevepost has a fine hunting dog story this week about a pointer illustrated as a setter.

REPORT NAZIS SEIZE HAGUE

BERLIN, May 10 (By radio)—The German radio announced today that The Hague, capital of the Netherlands, had been occupied by German forces.

The announcement said detachments of the German army occupied the Dutch capital at noon today, according to reliable sources. A fort near the capital also was reported seized by the Germans.

Units of flat-bottomed boats of the German navy are being used on all flooded parts of the Dutch coastal region and on the Zuider Zee to reach unflooded areas and occupy them, the radio announcement said. It asserted several other ports already had been occupied by the German navy.

BELGIANS CLAIM NAZIS STOPPED

BRUSSELS, May 10 (INS)—Blowing up bridges and destroying roads, Belgium's brave little army halted the German advance across the border today. Latest military information in Brussels said that the Nazis, who had expected clear sailing across the no man's land between Belgium's fortified line and the border itself, had been at least temporarily stopped in their tracks.

LONDON WARNED OF INVASION

LONDON, May 10 (AP)—The ministry of home security today issued a general warning to all England that "we must all be prepared" as a result of Germany's invasion of The Netherlands and Belgium.
